Dear Sir: P. C. & J. Kennedy

When the Attorney General of the United States displays utter contempt for the regulation against taking animals into government offices, and uses taxpayers' money to have his dog taken for walks can the ordinary citizen be blamed for lack of due respect for law?

The candid opinion of this ordinary citizen is that "Bobby" Kennedy should be required to pay the penalty for violation of the regulation, and misappropriation of funds.

Is he merely an administrator of the law, or is he above the law?

The attached clipping makes a joke of the incident, but the flouting of the law is no joke.

One wonders whether "Bobby's" crime will be included in the tabulation of crimes by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Yours truly,

Rule Notwithstanding, Brumus Joins RFK On Job

By William J. Eaton

WASHINGTON — UPI — antics during a lecture taking session with Kennedy. An aide finally led Brumus out of camera range.

No one has called the nation's chief law enforcement official on it yet. He appears to be in little danger of being convicted and serving the 30 day jail sentence which could be imposed for breaking the rule.

But the question comes up because a sad eyed Labrador named Brumus has been accompanying Kennedy to his office at the justice department lately.

Brumus is no ordinary dog. At the age of 14 months he is almost as big as a pony and not nearly as graceful.

"He usually stays at home with the children," the attorney general recently explained to visitors. "But the children are away on vacation and he gets very lonely. So I bring him down here and get pretty girls to take him for walks."

Words Of Regulation

Government building regulations issued by the general service administration have this to say on the subject:

"Dogs and other animals, except for Seeing Eye dogs, shall not be brought upon (government) property for other than official purposes."

Anyone found guilty faces a maximum penalty of $50 fine and 30 days in jail.

Brumus, whose shambling gait and mournful appearance invariably bring surprised smiles from Kennedy's callers, is considered well behaved—most of the time.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio seemed highly amused at the black dog's Brumus was the animal star of a film made in Kennedy's office by the United States Information Agency during a question and answer session with students from Brazil.

Star Of Film

The South American visitors seemed delighted when the attorney general solemnly poured his pet a drink of water from a silver pitcher into an ash-tray.

Kennedy's aides have jokingly suggested that Brumus might qualify as a goodwill envoy, a bodyguard or watchdog to meet the NSA test of being on official duty.

This, at least, seemed to bar any long justice department visits by other animals assembled by the seven Kennedy children. This menagerie has included two other dogs, ponies, horses, geese, a burro, a sea lion, Hungarian pigeons, 20 goldfish, rabbits, turtles and a salamander.

SUBJECT: VISIT OF ATTORNEY GENERAL TO SEATTLE AND THE NORTHWEST

In connection with the Attorney General's visit to Seattle and the Northwest, I have just learned that he is being taken on a camping trip by employees of the Olympic National Park.

In addition to the Attorney General, his wife and four children, they will be accompanied by Lemoine Billings, a family friend, and Justice William O. Douglas and his wife.

John Doerr, Superintendent of the Olympic National Park, has advised that he does not know how Justice Douglas got in on the party, except that he received a personal telephone call from Douglas on August 3 asking if Doerr could make arrangements for Justice Douglas and wife to accompany the Kennedys. Doerr being no fool acquiesced. He mentioned, however, that in order for the Attorney General to be in constant communication, the Forest Service has run 11 miles of telephone line from the end of their current system to the camp in which the Attorney General will be located. Further, they have a helicopter and pilot standing by and have employed the services of a private packer with his horses to transport the party, all at the Forest Service expense.

Dear Bob: Kennedy

I want to thank you for your prompt and vigorous support in challenging Mr. W. H. Ferry's unwarranted attack against the FBI and my administration of its affairs.

Of course, his comments are but another effort by a certain segment of our society to discredit the work of the FBI. I have always felt that we will have real cause for concern only when individuals of this caliber cease to attack us. Your immediate response was most reassuring to all of us and my associates and I appreciate your setting the record straight.

Dear Sirs:

Yesterday, without any special arrangements, I entered your building and joined the large groups waiting for Tours. I was treated with more courtesy than I have found in any other public gov't building here. An aide approached me immediately and offered me a chair in his office. Later I joined Mr. [REDACTED] tour and though it was his last tour of the day and he was somewhat hoarse, he was most gracious and thoughtful. He went out of his way to give us empty cartridges for souvenirs at the end.

I am here for a two week Writers' Conference at Georgetown U. and will return to my teaching job in Ferndale, Michigan on August 18. All year long I shall tell my high school students about my trip through FBI. The only thing missing was a glimpse of Robert Kennedy. Is there any way I could order an autographed photo of him for my classroom?

Accept my gratitude and every good wish for continued success.

Sincerely yours,

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy made a guest appearance on "The Tennessee Ernie Ford Show" initiated on the west coast and carried on the American Broadcasting Company Network on 8-17-62. The program was carried locally on WMAL-TV, Channel 7, at 11 a.m., that date. The program was monitored by a Special Agent of the Crime Research Section.

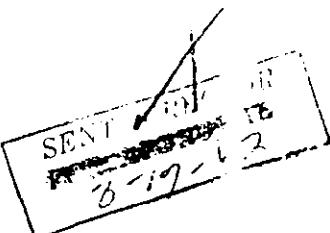

The show was strictly of an informal interview type in which the Attorney General and Mr. Ford discussed family life, sports preferences and vacation plans. There was no mention whatever of the Director or the FBI.

RE: ATTORNEY GENERAL ROBERT KENNEDY SPEECH
 BEFORE THE 13TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE NATIONAL DISTRICT ATTORNEYS ASSOCIATION

The Attorney General arrived in Philadelphia by plane at 6:45 p.m., Saturday night, where he was met by me and agents of the Philadelphia office. He was taken to the Bellevue Stratford Hotel where he talked at the banquet of the National District Attorneys Association. The speech lasted approximately 25 minutes and was complimentary of the Bureau.

After his speech he was driven to the Benjamin Franklin Hotel where he made a short speech before the Catholic War Veterans Association, after which, at approximately 10:30 p.m., he was driven back to the airport where he took off for the Cape. Contact was made with his family at the Cape so he would be met by them.

To and from the airport nothing was disclosed relative to the Bureau. Accompanying me were the United States Attorney, DREW O'KEEFE, and the District Attorney of the City of Philadelphia, JIM CRUMLISH. The conversation consisted mainly of politics and the Special Grand Jury probe that is going on in Philadelphia conducted by WILSON WHITE.

Prior to departure the Attorney General expressed his gratitude to the Bureau for showing him the various courtesies.

It is my understanding that the details will be covered by Inspector EDWARDS who represented the speech to the Bureau at the National District Attorneys Association.

SUBJECT: TRAVEL OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

This memorandum is submitted to supplement teletypes sent from San Francisco and Seattle with relation to the Attorney General's visit to these cities earlier this month. This was a combination business and vacation trip on the part of the Attorney General.

He arranged his flight from Washington Friday afternoon, August 3, 1962, so he could transfer in Chicago to the American Airlines flight from Boston to San Francisco which was being used by his wife and four older children. On arrival in San Francisco, the Attorney General and his family were met by their weekend hosts, Mr. and Mrs. John Bates. Bates is a San Francisco attorney in a prominent law firm headed by John Sutro, President of the San Francisco Bar Association. The Attorney General and his family spent the weekend at the Bates ranch located about sixty miles south of San Francisco. This was strictly a personal affair.

I went on into San Francisco myself as I had been invited to attend the banquet of the Ninth Judicial Circuit Conference Friday evening. This gave me the opportunity of talking with several Federal Judges I know on the west coast and I was introduced to the audience by Chief Judge Richard Chambers of the Court of Appeals. At the banquet I sat with the Chief Judge of the District Court in San Francisco, George B. Harris. The Ninth Judicial Circuit Conference continued on Saturday when I had further opportunity of talking with the Judges. This circuit, of course, covers the Rocky Mountain and western states and none of the Judges raised any problem insofar as the Bureau is concerned and were most commendatory. They seemed to be well-acquainted with the various Special Agents in Charge in their home communities and spoke favorably of their relationships with the FBI field offices.

The Attorney General and his family returned to San Francisco Sunday evening and they stayed overnight in the apartment of the parents of Navy Under Secretary Fay.

RE: TRAVEL OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

On Monday the Attorney General held a press conference. One question was asked by a reporter concerning an advanced copy of a speech to be delivered at the American Bar Association Convention by John Satterfield, the Association President, which was critical of the Fugitive Felon Act. (A teletype on this was submitted from San Francisco.) It is interesting to note that this question came "out of the blue." Despite this, the Attorney General handled it very effectively and obviously has some familiarity with the overall picture insofar as unlawful flight cases are concerned as he told the reporter his recollection was in the last five years there had been approximately 5,000 persons arrested by the FBI under this statute and only some twenty had been prosecuted in Federal court.

The Attorney General appeared at the KGO television studios and taped a program with Tennessee Ernie Ford which was to be telecast later. Following his luncheon appearance before the Committee of the Judiciary of the American Bar Association, the Attorney General addressed the House of Delegates. He left for Seattle at 5:00 p. m.

There was exceptionally limited contact with any FBI personnel in San Francisco. SAC Price was, of course, at the conference with the heads of the Federal law enforcement agencies which the Attorney General held that morning. While transportation over the weekend was handled by the Attorney General's host, the San Francisco Office did, at his request, drive him to the United States Attorney's Office, to the television station, to the Bar Association Convention and then to the airport for his departure.

On arrival in Seattle on Monday evening, the Attorney General and his family were transported from the airport to the Hotel by Governor Rosellini of the State of Washington and officials of the World's Fair. That evening the Attorney General dined privately with John McCone, CIA Director.

On Tuesday, I met with the Attorney General, the United States Attorney for the Western District of Washington and with Chief Judge William Lindberg of the United States District Court in Seattle. This related to prosecutive matters in the District Court in which the Federal government had an interest. No matter was raised which directly affected the FBI. Judge Lindberg and United States Attorney Brock Adams are, of course, both very

RE: TRAVEL OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

/friendly and well known to SAC Milnes of whom they spoke most highly. I was invited to attend the luncheon given for the Attorney General on the Fair Grounds and visited with United States District Judge Powell of the Eastern District of Washington. He is a relatively new appointee to the bench but spoke in most favorable terms as far as the FBI is concerned.

The Attorney General had a press conference and was, as has been previously reported by teletype, asked about the derogatory remarks concerning the Director and the FBI which had been made at the Western States Democratic Conference by W. H. Ferry, Vice President of the Fund for the Republic. The Attorney General had been fully briefed concerning these slanderous remarks and he was thus prepared for the question. The Attorney General left for the Olympic Peninsula for his vacation and I returned to Washington.

There was limited contact with FBI personnel as the Attorney General did not ask us to provide him with any transportation. SAC Milnes was with me on two occasions and had the opportunity of chatting briefly with the Attorney General. His conversations related to over-all conditions in the Pacific Northwest and the Attorney General asked no questions about FBI operations in Seattle.

It is noted the Attorney General has previously visited our San Francisco Office. He told SAC Milnes he hoped to be able to visit the Seattle Office on some future trip but that his schedule was too crowded on this occasion.

This trip has differed from previous ones made by the Attorney General in that it was a combination business-pleasure one. As a consequence, he did not devote long hours well into the evening handling business but restricted his activities. Even so he couldn't get any place on time, even for his speeches. This seems to be a deliberate strategy on his part to provide for a dramatic entrance.

SUBJECT: "JUST FRIENDS AND BRAVE ENEMIES"
 BY ROBERT F. KENNEDY
 BOOK REVIEW

SYNOPSIS:

A chapter by chapter summary of the above captioned book, a copy of which was autographed to the Director, is set forth. "Just Friends and Brave Enemies" concerns Kennedy's trip to Japan, Indonesia and Germany and sets forth some of the matters discussed and the questions asked by the peoples of these countries.

In chapter two Kennedy indicates that he told the members of the Japanese Ministry of Justice in some detail of the work of the FBI and how, at an early date, J. Edgar Hoover had recognized the menace of internal subversion and had taken steps to deal with it. He also spoke of American labor efforts to keep the communists out of the unions and emphasized that certainly part of our success in the United States in controlling the spread of internal communism has been due to the farsightedness of the FBI and to the fact that organized labor in part has pursued democratic, not communistic aims.

Kennedy feels we have much to do toward educating these people to a true picture of the United States as it is today. He points out again and again the failure of the communist elements of these countries to explain certain terms used in describing the United States and to back up other statements which they make.

CHAPTER 1: "THE WORLD IS A PROUD PLACE"

Attorney General Kennedy begins his book with reference to his trip with his brother, then Congressman Kennedy, to Tokyo, Pakistan, India, Thailand, Manila and Indochina in 1951. During that trip they had met Dr. Gunji Hosono, the director of the Japan Institute of Foreign Affairs, who was most hospitable and who, shortly after President Kennedy's inauguration, called upon the Attorney General to invite the President--or if that was impossible, the Attorney General--to visit Japan. Mr. Kennedy then summarized the stops on his trip and his opinion as to the benefits derived from his contacts with these various peoples.

CHAPTER 2: "A BUSINESS MEETING"

The author expresses the opinion that little of value comes from the formal reception and dinners that are a part of official diplomacy. With this in mind, he wanted his contacts in the countries he visited to be ^{off}/more informal and personal basis. He details his visit to Japan and indicates that only the first day was given to formal official calls. He called on Justice Minister Ueki and sit down with the staff of the Japanese Ministry of Justice for an informal discussion of their respective departments. They talked about what had been done in the United States to deal with subversion and to control the spread of internal communism, particularly as far as organized labor and youth organizations were concerned. Kennedy indicates he told them in some detail of the work of the FBI and how, that at a very early date, J. Edgar Hoover had recognized the menace of internal subversion and had taken steps to deal with it. He also told them of American labor's efforts to keep the communists out of the unions. He indicates that this was American history that seemed new to the Japanese and the fact that citizens, banding together, with vigor, courage and determination, had won the struggle against communist elements, made an impression. He states that certainly part of our success in the United States in contrdling the spread of internal communism has been due to the farsightedness of the FBI and to the fact that organized labor in part has pursued democratic, not communistic aims.

The Japanese organized a citizens welcoming committee called The Young People's Committee for Better International Understanding. It gave itself the nickname the "R. K. (Robert Kennedy) Committee" and organized the extensive schedule which brought the visitors into direct and intimate contact with the people of Japan. They organized several round-table discussions, first with a group of business leaders, then with the representatives of several political parties. Among other things, they discussed the communist cultural offensive in Japan, as compared with our efforts in the same line. They raised significant points about the difficult problem of trade with communist China, nuclear tests and Okinawa. For the most part, these discussions were carried on in a friendly atmosphere with the participants raising honest questions and seeking honest answers. The only differences arose in discussions with the Japanese Socialist Party which has long paralleled ^{the} Communist Party line. Kennedy sets forth a transcript of his exchanges ^{with} Tomomi Narita, their chief spokesman, in which he brings out the point that while Narita's group criticized the United States for resuming tests they did not criticize the Soviet Union.

BY ROBERT F. KENNEDY

CHAPTER 3: "A STUDENT EXCHANGE"

Kennedy indicates that throughout their stay in Japan there was fear that the disorder and turmoil which erupted in Tokyo at the time of the Hagerty visit might recur. There were small groups carrying anti-American signs on several occasions as well as threats of trouble but they decided to go on with their trip. He spoke at Nihon University to a receptive audience. He then drove to Waseda University where he received a friendly welcome. At the beginning of the speech, however, the disrupters, located strategically in twos and threes throughout the hall, began to shout and jeer. At first Kennedy attempted to ignore the loudest and continue his speech. Finally, he invited the young communist to the platform to ask questions. Once on the stage, the student launched into an anti-American tirade which went on for five minutes. When concluded and Kennedy attempted to answer every light in the house went out as the power failed and the microphone went dead. He attempted to speak without a microphone but it was not possible. Someone then found a battery operated bull horn and after Ambassador Edwin Reischauer, who was well known and respected by the youth of Japan, had restored order Kennedy continued his speech.

CHAPTER 4: "A DIALOGUE WITH LABOR"

The third day, Kennedy met with a group from the labor movement in Japan for another informal session of give and take. During this discussion he met a labor leader named Akira Iwai whom he considered the most stimulating personality he had met during the entire trip. Again, Kennedy found Iwai was as confused about the American way of life as were some of the students. Among other points raised by the labor men was the treatment of the Communist Party in the United States. Iwai felt we were abusing "a legitimate political party." Kennedy found it was generally accepted in Japan and elsewhere that we had "outlawed" the Communist Party. He found that Iwai considered the United States imperialistic in connection with Cuba and Laos but would not so term the Soviet Union and Communist China based on what happened in Tibet and Hungary. He also found that the Japanese were looking on America as it was 100 years ago and not as it is today.

BY ROBERT F. KENNEDY

CHAPTER 5: "THE PEOPLE SPEAK"

In Kyoto a meeting was arranged with a group of labor leaders followed by a conference with students from universities and colleges. Only eight youngsters showed up at the conference and announced formally that the six communists had decided to boycott the meeting. Kennedy discussed the Democratic system and concluded that a Democratic system gives freedom but it also poses obligations and responsibilities. He felt this was a point many of the students of Japan had not yet come to understand. One boy was disturbed because the world was divided in two and stated he felt Berlin was a key point in the East-West struggle. Another young man asked why our government, while defending the cause of freedom, had friendly relations with such countries as South Korea or Taiwan or Spain. He also wondered how we could expect the United Nations to preserve peace and at the same time exclude a major world power such as Communist China and he asked about our role in the Cuban incident.

CHAPTER 6: "ANOTHER FIELD, ANOTHER GRASSHOPPER; ANOTHER POND, ANOTHER FISH"

Kennedy next went to Indonesia where he found the mood far different from that in Japan. In all the time spent in Japan he had not seen one Japanese soldier or sailor but from the moment they arrived in Indonesia they were aware that it is a nation under arms as there were soldiers everywhere. Here too the atmosphere was rather restrictive and it was harder to get to the people. Foremost in the minds of the Indonesians was our failure to stand with them in the matter of Dutch occupation of West New Guinea. Poverty and hunger was everywhere and it was plain that despite tremendous natural resources this nation is under developed and very poor. Kennedy was to deliver a lecture to the student senate and the faculty of law at the University of Indonesia and upon his arrival a tall skinny young man threw a piece of hard fruit which struck him on the bridge of the nose. A portion of Kennedy's speech is set forth and he indicates that while there was no real enthusiasm about anything he said in his prepared remarks, the question and answer session which followed was far more stimulating and provoked a genuine response. Their main question, of course, concerned the United States position on West New Guinea and they also had other questions--about our racial difficulties, about our political history and even about the Mexican war.

BY ROBERT F. KENNEDY

CHAPTER 7: "CAPITALISM" IS THE DIRTY WORD OF THE ORIENT"

In Jagjakarta the Attorney General spoke at Gadjah Mada University. Again, most of the questions concerned West New Guinea. One young man asked "Is it true that the United States of America is a capitalistic monopolistic country and that monopolistic capitalism competes with our form of socialism?" Kennedy asked him what he meant by the term monopolistic and capitalistic. Neither he nor any of the other students would answer. Once again Kennedy pointed out that ours was not the same country as that of 100 years ago. The following day Kennedy spoke at the University of Bandung where he again ran into the word "capitalism." In much of Asia the word "capitalism," because of the system used to exploit the people, is an evil word, and the communists have spared no effort in reminding people of this fact. They also remind them that the United States has a capitalistic system and, therefore, if given the opportunity, would renew this system of exploitation. We on the other hand have not faced up to the fact that we have to convince people that what they understand as capitalism is not in any way the kind, form or system of government existing in the United States or indeed most of the western nations today.

CHAPTER 8: "SOMETHING THERE IS THAT DOESN'T LOVE A WALL..."

Mr. Kennedy states that heart-warming as their reception in Japan had been, the crowds in West Berlin were unlike any he had ever seen. It was below freezing when they arrived and snow was falling yet a 100 thousand people lined the streets as they drove from the airport. In his speeches to the people of Berlin, Kennedy made the point again and again that the Berlin wall was constructed not to keep people out but to keep the East Germans in. He laid wreaths honoring the victims who leaped to their death to escape the communists. Kennedy's main purpose in visiting Berlin was to deliver the Ernst Reuter lecture at the Free University of Berlin. His speech is reprinted. He indicated that the workers of Berlin are staunch friends of the United States and dedicated anticommunists. He was struck most by the sight of people on the other side of the wall who waved to him surreptitiously.

M. A. Jones to DeLoach
RE: "JUST FRIENDS AND BRAVE ENEMIES"
BY ROBERT F. KENNEDY

CHAPTER 9: "THE YOUNG AT HEART"

From Berlin, the party flew by military helicopter to Bonn. He indicates that the people in Bonn are well-dressed and prosperous looking and their faces do not show the strain and pressure of the Berlin citizens. His two main purposes in going to Bonn were to see Chancellor Adenauer and to address the West German Society of Foreign Affairs. The central theme of his conversation with Adenauer was the necessity that the United States, the leader of the free world, have a faith and an ideal to guide other countries. Adenauer felt that Russia's difficulties with China were just beginning and that with the common market Europe was on the threshold of a new life. Kennedy's speech to the West German Society of Foreign Affairs is produced in its entirety. From Bonn they flew to The Hague and then on to Paris where he had a meeting with President De Gaulle and discussed the same subjects he had discussed with Adenauer. From Paris, they flew back home.

CHAPTER 10 "...LET FACTS BE SUBMITTED TO A CANDID WORLD..."

Kennedy states he returned home with the conviction that there is a tremendous reservoir of goodwill toward the United States which will disappear if the potential is not properly realized. He notes that we must put our own house in order, particularly in the field of civil rights and sets forth some examples in our efforts to do so. He states we must recognize that in each of these countries there is a strong and vocal communist opposition to the United States and to our way of life. In all these countries this group is well-organized. He indicates that the amount of misinformation as well as the lack of information regarding the United States and our system of government in these countries is appalling. He suggests sending groups of men and women to lecture not just about the United States and our form of government, or about democracy generally, but also about history and philosophy and even more practical matters. He would have people talk about some of the successes we've had in the United States and the problems we have had to overcome. He would tell them more about what we have been able to accomplish. Kennedy indicates that many people more than qualify for this task and names Frank Church, Eugene McCarthy, Hubert Humphrey, Paul Douglas, John Sherman Cooper, Stewart Udall and Orville Freeman, as well as Walter Lippmann or David Brinkley. He would encourage other free countries of the world to set up their own "peace corps" with the understanding that our organization would cooperate closely with them.

Memo

TO : MR. LEAVAN

DATE: 9/5/62

FROM : LEWIS W. OPSAL

SUBJECT: NBC RADIO INTERVIEW 9/2/62
ATTORNEY GENERAL ROBERT F. KENNEDY

At approximately 3:10 p.m. Sunday, 9/2/62, while I was on my way to work, I heard a recorded interview of Attorney General Robert Kennedy conducted by Russ Ward over the local National Broadcasting Company station. Upon arriving at work at about 3:20 p.m., I advised the Duty Agent in the Domestic Intelligence Division of the interview and the fact that the Director and the FBI were mentioned. The Duty Agent suggested that I submit a memorandum concerning the remarks made during the interview and refer the memorandum to the Domestic Intelligence Division.

Parts of this interview were not heard by me due to excessive street noise; however, the following is the gist of the interview. Mr. Ward asked about the number of Communist Party members in the United States and Mr. Kennedy replied that there are about 10,000 members in the Communist Party at this time. Mr. Ward stated that Mr. Hoover, the Director of the FBI, had recently been referred to as an "ineffective spy swatter" and he inquired of Mr. Kennedy what his feelings were. Mr. Kennedy stated that Mr. Hoover and the FBI were very effective in combatting subversion and communism and without this effectiveness, communism's effect on this country would have been very great.

ADDENDUM: 9-6-62

This memorandum should be referred to the Domestic Intelligence Division as requested by the Duty Agent with whom Opsal discussed this matter on Sunday, 9-2-62.

Pages A6560-A6561. Senator Jackson, (D) Washington, requested to have printed in the Record an article entitled "Mr. Attorney General" which appeared in the August 23 edition of the British journal, the Economist. It is pointed out in the article "later he became chief counsel for the Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field. It was there that he first caught the public eye. Under his dynamic leadership the Department of Justice has gone after corrupt trade union leaders and business monopolies. It has also scourged gamblers and peddlers of dope, exposed crooked policemen and judges, and pressed energetically for more civil rights for Negroes."

The article goes on to state "The Attorney General has his brother's ear and like the President himself is continuously on the prod. Gangsters and other public enemies are uneasily aware that little brother is watching them." The article further states "He himself says that businessmen ought to look on him as their friend, - - - but some of them suspect that he regards big business as a form of organized crime. The swiftness with which he moved to investigate the steel industry this spring, dispatching his agents to knock up newspapermen at 3 o'clock in the morning, did nothing to reassure them."

Robert Kennedy Confused Over Dinner for Reynolds

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his press officer, Edwin Guthman, seemed confused Friday over Kennedy's scheduled speech here Oct. 6 at a $50-a-plate testimonial dinner for Wisconsin's attorney general, John W. Reynolds.

Reynolds, an early state backer of John F. Kennedy for president, is the Democratic candidate for governor. The testimonial dinner, sponsored by the Friends of John W. Reynolds committee, will raise funds for his campaign.

Guthman told reporters in Washington, D. C., that Atty. Gen. Kennedy had decided to depart from his announced position of not participating in political campaigns this fall because he felt he owed a special political debt to Reynolds.

Answered by Justice
However, Kennedy followed Guthman's statement with one of his own, saying that his scheduled appearance here would be no departure from his "hands-off" policy.

"It's a nonpolitical testimonial dinner," Kennedy said. "It's being given by the judges of the state supreme court, including Republicans."

This brought a statement in Madison from Timothy Brown, chief justice of the state supreme court, who said he was not a sponsor of the dinner, had not been approached on the subject and knew of no other justices being approached.

"Final Statement"

Robert L. Bittner, Green Bay, treasurer of the Reynolds campaign committee, said he did not want to contradict Kennedy. But he said that the funds raised at the dinner certainly would be used for Reynolds' gubernatorial campaign.

By Friday night, Kennedy had left Washington for the weekend and Guthman issued a final statement:

"The attorney general understands that it is a testimonial dinner at which funds are being raised."

The attorney general's knowledge of that fact will not deter him from attending the dinner, said Guthman.

The Attorney General advised this morning that because of the situation in Mississippi he cancelled his scheduled appearance before the student body at Stanford University scheduled for this evening. He advised, however, that he still intends, if at all possible, to fulfill his speaking commitment tomorrow in connection with the dedication of the law school at the University of San Francisco.

He now plans to leave Washington at 6:30 a.m. on a nonstop TWA flight, arriving at San Francisco at 8:35 p.m. The Attorney General intends to make his speech and immediately return to Washington, leaving at 11:00 p.m., Saturday, and arriving at 7:10 a.m. Sunday morning.

The Attorney General advised that since he will have only two and one-half hours to get from the airport to downtown San Francisco, make his speech and return to the airport, he will have to depend on our San Francisco Office for assistance in meeting this tight schedule. SAC Price at San Francisco has been advised and he will meet the Attorney General and provide him transportation as requested.

As previously reported, the Attorney General is going to Milwaukee on Saturday, October 6, 1962. This is strictly a political trip, as he is attending a fund-raising dinner for the Democratic candidate for Governor of Wisconsin. The Attorney General has not asked for any assistance from the Bureau in connection with his Milwaukee trip; nevertheless, our SAC at Milwaukee has been informed of the fact the Attorney General will be in town.

Instead of returning to Washington, however, the Attorney General is going to New York Sunday night, arriving at Idlewild Airport at 8:50 p. m. aboard American Airlines Flight 910. He has asked to be met by our New York Office. This will be handled by New York in line with the Attorney General's request.

SYNOPSIS:

A chapter by chapter summary of the above-captioned book is set forth. The author, Robert E. Thompson, is a former Washington correspondent of "The Daily News" and is presently with "The Los Angeles Times," while his co-author Hortense Myers is with United Press International.

The book is a personal portrait of Robert F. Kennedy who is described as the President's right-hand man. Chapter 1 sets forth Kennedy's decision as to whether or not to accept appointment as Attorney General and indicates he sought the Director's counsel in making that decision. He again mentions the Director in Chapter 2 in a quote from his (Kennedy's) speech at Dallas, Texas, when he described the Director as a "vigilant, experienced American who has real credentials as a communist fighter." In connection with the steel dispute, the authors state that although the Attorney General did not mean for FBI Agents to get reporters out of bed nevertheless he took full responsibility.

The book also deals with Kennedy's service on the McCarran Committee, his association with the late Senator McCarthy and his work for his brother in his various campaigns. In this connection Kennedy is quoted as saying the two greatest disappointments of his life have been his brother's losing the vice presidential nomination and the acquittal of Jimmy Hoffa. The book further covers various aspects of Kennedy's activities as Attorney General including incidents involving Freedom Riders in Alabama and his interest in bettering the lot of the Negro.

NO. RECORDED

Much is said about Robert Kennedy's organizational ability and masterly strategy in his brother's political campaigns. The concluding chapter relates Robert Kennedy's future and the possibilities open to him--in another high government post, as senator, or possibly President--and sets forth arguments for and against.

As noted there are several references to the Director or the Bureau and these are detailed in the chapter by chapter summary. It should also be noted that one of the illustrations in the center of the book is a picture of the President at his desk signing legislation giving the Attorney General broad powers to fight crime. Grouped behind the President are the Attorney General, the Director and Senator Kenneth Keating.

THE BOOK

This book is described as a personal portrait of the President's right-hand man: his career, his power, his prospects. It contains an introduction by Justice William O. Douglas who indicates that he was a frequent visitor to the Kennedy home and saw Robert Kennedy grow to manhood.

CHAPTER I: DECISION

This chapter pertains to Robert F. Kennedy's decision as to whether or not he should accept his brother's appointment as Attorney General of the United States. The authors indicate he sought counsel from outside of his family, going first to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover who assured him he could make a vigorous and effective fight against crime. They go on to say that both Mr. Hoover and Senator John McClellan advised him to become Attorney General, both insisting the job offered unlimited opportunities to benefit the nation. The authors point out that despite angry criticism of the President's appointment of his own brother, Kennedy faced only token opposition when he appeared at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee on January, 13, 1961.

CHAPTER II "HIS INTEREST IS THE SAME AS MINE"

President Kennedy, discussing Robert, emphasized the importance of the "community of interest" that his brother has with him. The authors note that

M. A. Jones to Mr. Loach Memo

Re: "ROBERT F. KENNEDY:
THE BROTHER WITHIN"

Robert Kennedy's manifold activities on behalf of the President in his first year and a half as Attorney General carried him far afield from the confines of the Department of Justice and spread his influence through much of the United States Government. They quoted from the Attorney General's speech in Dallas, Texas, in November, 1961, in which he said he had no sympathy with those who are defeatist and who would rather be "Red than dead," nor with those who, in the name of fighting communism, sow seeds of suspicion and distrust by making false or irresponsible charges, and stated "as a vigilant, experienced American who has real credentials as a communist fighter--J. Edgar Hoover--has said, such actions play into communist hands and hinder, rather than aid, the fight against communism."

Commenting on the steel dispute the authors refer to the incident involving FBI Agents rousing three newspaper reporters out of bed in the pre-dawn hours to question them about an alleged statement by the President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation that the price increase was not necessary, and stated that the Attorney General did not mean for the FBI Agents to get reporters out of bed, nevertheless Robert Kennedy took full responsibility for the incident.

CHAPTER III: WHAT MAKES BOBBY RUN

David Powers, official greeter of the White House and a long-time political lieutenant of John F. Kennedy, gave this assessment of the drive that motivates the President's brother and has made him, in his words, the second most powerful man in the Government of the United States: "Bobby Kennedy has to be first all the time." Yet, the authors point out, he is not a megalomaniac obsessed with first place for himself alone. He is devoted and loyal to the President and their relationship is so unique and they are such a superbly co-ordinated unit that what one attains the other attains. Together, he and the President have undertaken four major public ventures--John Kennedy's 1952 senatorial campaign and his 1960 presidential race; the Senate Rackets Committee investigation; and now the development and operation of the new frontier. In only one of these--the racket's probe--has Robert Kennedy had the occasional opportunity to step out of his brother's shadow and into a spotlight where he could display his own abilities. This chapter quotes Robert Kennedy as saying "The two greatest disappointments of my life have been my brother's losing the vice presidential nomination and the acquittal of Jimmy Hoffa."

The authors here point to Robert Kennedy's tenacity as a student in playing football--a game for which he was ill suited physically. They state that where John Kennedy can view almost any problem of state or humanity with dispassion and aloofness, Robert Kennedy invariably becomes emotionally involved in the job at hand and the people embroiled in it. They state that it never bothers Robert Kennedy that he has been called the hatchet man for his brother. During the presidential campaign when politicians and party workers complained of brisk treatment from him, his reply was that he had a job to do and could not tolerate anything less than dedication and hard work from others in the campaign. "Let Jack be charming to them" he would add.

M. A. Jones to Mr. DeLoach Memo
Re: "ROBERT F. KENNEDY:
THE BROTHER WITHIN"

CHAPTER IV: THE MIDDLE BROTHER

This chapter concerns the members of the Kennedy family, and points out that when Robert was born, brother Joe, Jr., was 10 and Jack was 8 hence, he was the little brother in the middle of 5 sisters until the age of 7 when Teddy came along. Years later during the 1960 presidential primary in Wisconsin, Robert Kennedy found himself caught in the shuffle between brothers. Teddy made headlines by going off a high ski jump and thereafter, said Robert, "everybody I met.... wanted to know first if I was Senator Kennedy, then if I was the fellow who went off the ski-jump. Finally they got me straight...I ... was the brother in the middle."

As a youngster, Robert was described as clumsy though a friendly, slightly shy, well mannered little boy. He did not display any special aptitude for any career, but one family friend considers him the one best equipped by personality and determination to have gone out and made a fortune of his own. This chapter touches on some of his business ventures and associations as a boy and indicates that he collected $2,000 from his father when he was 21 for not smoking or drinking. He joined the Naval Air Corps as soon as he was 18 years old but never did see any action. Following the war Kennedy toured Latin America and then returned to Harvard. After graduation in 1948 he was sent by the "Boston Post" to the Middle East to write about the war between the Arabs and the Jews. After going to Germany to watch the Berlin airlift operation, he returned to the United States and enrolled in the University of Virginia Law School. As head of the student forum there, he invited a number of outstanding Americans to speak on the campus at Charlottesville, including Negro Democrat Ralph Bunche. In 1955, with Justice Douglas, he made a six-week trip through five Central Asian Republics of the Soviet Union.

CHAPTER V: MISTRESS OF HICKORY HILL

This chapter concerns Robert Kennedy's family--his wife Ethel and their seven children. Ethel Kennedy, according to the author, has fit in well with the Kennedy family and similarities between Ethel and her mother-in-law are remarkable. She has taken a special interest in her husband's work and is a definite asset to him on his trips.

M. A. Jones to Mr. DeLoach Memo
Re: "ROBERT F. KENNEDY:
THE BROTHER WITHIN

CHAPTER VI: THE INCREDIBLE ERA

This chapter pertains to Robert Kennedy's relationship with the late Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. McCarthy was one of those whom Kennedy invited to address the University of Virginia student forum. The authors indicate that Robert Kennedy could not get along with McCarthy's aides, Roy Cohn and G. David Schine. Kennedy felt Senator McCarthy made a mistake in allowing the committee to operate as it did under Cohn and Schine, told him so and resigned.

This chapter recites McCarthy's activities leading to his eventual "fall" and Kennedy feels that the day McCarthy hired Cohn and Schine he sealed his doom.

CHAPTER VII: THE CHERRY TREES ARE SAFE

This chapter refers to the great Washington birthday sales in the District and states that Attorney General Kennedy, arriving at the Justice Department on February 22, 1961, to put in some overtime, discovered numerous cars of Justice employees were already in the courtyard. He obtained a list of all employees whose cars were in the courtyard and wrote them personal letters of gratitude on their "devotion to duty." One employee replied that "In keeping with the spirit of Washington's birthday, I must confess that I did not work on that day." Delighted by this display of integrity, Kennedy replied "With honesty like this in the Department, the nation's cherry trees are safe."

The authors point to Kennedy's interest in the various facets of the Department of Justice. They refer to his May 6, 1961, speech at the University of Georgia in Athens where he faced an audience that included bitter antagonists in a region where politicians and demagogues had preached disobedience to Federal law and declared that man cannot live without law to tell him what is right and what is wrong, what is permitted and what is prohibited. The Attorney General's interest in bettering the lot of the Negro is also covered in this chapter and he is said to feel that the Negro has profited more from the passage of a broad spectrum of social and economic legislation than he would have had Congress become embroiled in a bitter dispute over civil rights.

CHAPTER VIII: ALL NECESSARY STEPS

This chapter deals with the Freedom Riders in Alabama when the Attorney General rushed 150 Federal law enforcement officers to Montgomery to stand between the Reverend Martin Luther King's congregation and death. It details the Attorney General's differences with Governor John Patterson; the May 14, 1961, attack on a Greyhound bus in Anniston, Alabama; and the incident involving

M. A. Jones to Mr. McLoach Memo

Re: "ROBERT F. KENNEDY:
THE BROTHER WITHIN"

Freedom Riders on a Trailways bus in Birmingham when Birmingham police were strangely absent despite FBI warnings that violence could be expected.

CHAPTER IX: ADVENTURES TOGETHER

This chapter deals primarily with the 1960 presidential campaign and the manner in which Robert Kennedy conducted the campaign, including the primaries against Senator Hubert Humphrey. Much is said about Robert's organizational ability, his ruthlessness and his masterly strategy in winning against supposedly almost unbeatable odds of age and religion.

CHAPTER X: BEYOND THE NEW FRONTIER

This concluding chapter attempts to go into the matter of Robert Kennedy's future. It discusses the possibilities open to him--in another high government office, -as senator,-or possibly President--and sets forth arguments for and against. The authors conclude by stating, "Should the people in 1968 or in a succeeding election find themselves still in need of Kennedy leadership, they might decide to forget their fear of dynasty and stake their hopes on Robert Francis Kennedy."

Memorandum

TO : Mr. Belmont

DATE: 12/15/62

FROM : C. A. Evans

SUBJECT: TRAVEL OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The Attorney General is leaving Washington at 11:30 tonight, December 15, 1962, for Brazil. He expects to be back in Washington sometime Tuesday, December 18. He is traveling by Air Force plane.

As a matter of background in this connection, the U. S. Ambassador in Brazil called the White House late yesterday and indicated that unless the Brazilian Government took immediate corrective action the country would undoubtedly go bankrupt. The Attorney General and Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Martin, are therefore going to Brazil and forcefully get over to the President of Brazil the need for prompt and decisive action.

While there is no indication the Attorney General will be in contact with our Legal Attaché since the Attorney General is going only to Brasilia and not to Rio de Janeiro, we are nevertheless alerting the Legal Attaché by cable.

COMMENTS ON THE KENNEDY-GOULART MEETING

Rio de Janeiro Meridional in Portuguese to Brazil 0130 GMT
19 December 1962--W

(Text) Brasilia--The meeting of President Goulart and Mr. Robert Kennedy will determine several measures in the fields of Brazilian domestic and foreign policies, in line with the reorganization program of the Alliance for Progress. In spite of the secrecy surrounding the talks, it was revealed that there has been no demand regarding Brazilian policies. It is said that Kennedy merely expressed the apprehension of his government about the extremist infiltration in Brazil, with communists in key posts of the administration.

The trip of the President's brother to Brazil, according to well-informed circles, is said to be connected with the journey of Juscelino Kubitschek to the United States. In addition to the task entrusted to him by the Organization of American States, Kubitschek is said to have been asked to talk with U.S. financial authorities about Brazilian foreign obligations. His success in these talks is said to have suffered because of suspicion caused by the presence of many communists in the Brazilian Government and the absence of financial measures.

Then Robert Kennedy went to Brazil to personally express the reasons for the reservations of his government. However, the problems of our foreign policy and financial matters are said to have been of secondary consideration (in the talks?).

Diplomatic circles of Brazil say that the first measure to be taken by Goulart will be to appoint a conservative politician as foreign minister, suggesting that the new foreign minister will be Tancredo Neves.

The talks no doubt dealt with the need of continental action against communist infiltration, in view of the repercussions of the Caribbean crisis. In this connection, it was revealed that the proposal for a denuclearized zone in Latin America will probably be abandoned to its own fate due to a lack of interest on the part of the Brazilian Foreign Ministry. The proposal was already finding general opposition and the tendency was to postpone its discussion until the second session of the General Assembly, where it would be rejected. Afonso Arinos, its sponsor, would not be present then to defend the proposal before the United Nations, nor would he be in the Foreign Ministry.

DISCOVERY OF SUBVERSIVE PLAN CONFIRMED

Porto Alegre Radio Guaiba in Portuguese 0130 GMT 19 December 1962--W

(Text) Rio de Janeiro--The chief of the Rio de Janeiro political police, (Cecil Borer?) has confirmed the discovery of a national subversive plan scheduled for execution the first days of January. He revealed that he has sent recommendations to all state police headquarters asking for the arrest of 30 key persons who are supposed to have received orders to carry out subversive activities. It will be remembered that the arrest of attorney Santos de Moraes, who is connected with the peasant movements of the northeast, made possible the discovery of the plot.

The center of the agitation is in the interior of Goias. It is believed that Deputy Francisco Juliao is involved. He has been accused of being responsible for coordination and the training of guerrillas. In addition, documents have been discovered incriminating officials of the Soviet Embassy, as in the case of (Anatoliy Chadrin?).

In this connection, Deputy Father Vidigal, at a press conference, has made new accusations of the existence of subversive propaganda in the ecclesiastics of the iron curtain countries, which is being disseminated while the government remains complacent. He accused the Soviet Embassy in particular, adding that he foresaw such activities when, in the Chamber of Deputies, he had opposed the renewal of relations between Brazil and the Soviet Union. The deputy priest said that after the establishment of the Soviet Embassy, communist propaganda was disseminated throughout Brazil in an impressive, challenging, and offensive manner, with the support or compliance of the government.

Further Details

Sao Paulo Radio Tupi in Portuguese 0115 GMT 19 December 1962--W

(Summary) Brasilia--Authorities of the second military region announced on 18 December that the army is gathering data regarding guerrilla organizations operating in the interior of the state of Goias, under the influence of persons from Pernambuco connected with Deputy Francisco Juliao.

The army spokesman said that he was not surprised by the arrest of a Guanabara attorney who is accused of taking weapons to the town of Dianopolis in the interior of Goias. He added that this should not cause fear among the population because the government is on the alert and will act when necessary.

GOULART COMMENTS ON KENNEDY TALKS

Rio de Janeiro Ministerio Exterior in Portuguese to Embassies 1900
GMT 18 December 1962--W

(Text) President Goulart has granted an interview to JORNAL DO BRASIL about the visit of Mr. Robert Kennedy to Brazil. We quote a few passages below:

"U.S. Ambassador Lincoln Gordon had asked me for an audience. During the talk, which was very cordial, I commented about the statements of President Kennedy, as reported from Washington, on the Brazilian internal situation, and especially the enormous concern shown toward the economic and financial difficulties of the nation. I pointed out the repercussions which these statements could have here, in Brazil, and the rumors which, no doubt, will arise on the basis of these statements.

"At this point, the U.S. ambassador told me of the presence of Mr. Robert Kennedy in Panama, and suggested the possibility of a meeting to have a frank talk with a person of his relationship to the President. He said that such a meeting could clear up some problem of real interest in Brazilian-U.S. relations.

"Acting on the opportune suggestion of the U.S. ambassador, I asked that an invitation be sent to Mr. Robert Kennedy for an informal meeting. Shortly thereafter, Ambassador Gordon confirmed the trip of Mr. Kennedy to Brasilia for a personal and informal meeting. As soon as I received this confirmation of Mr. Kennedy's trip, I contacted the president of the Council of Ministers and Foreign Minister Hermes Lima telling him of the trip and of the reasons for it.

"In a long talk with the premier, I told him what I wanted to discuss with Mr. Kennedy, especially regarding the points and aspects which demand most attention and which could lead to clarifications which I believed necessary and which we wanted President Kennedy to know from a source of unimpeachable authority, Mr. Robert Kennedy."

Further on, President Goulart said: "We agreed that certain Brazilian information channels--and I do not refer to the press which in Brazil is free and can compete with the best of the world--which have access to the President of the United States and to the U.S. State Department, do not represent the interests of our nation and much less of our people. This specifically was one of the main topics of the frank and cordial conversation which I had with Mr. Robert Kennedy.

"Another matter discussed was that of our balance of payments and the ever decreasing prices of our basic export products as compared with the increasing prices of the machinery which we buy from that friendly nation.

"Naturally, in formal meetings and receptions we could not use the same clear and objective language we used, where we discussed a little of everything, but always without hiding our thoughts or weighing our words.

"Alliance for Progress, the Cuban crisis, the situation in Latin America, were all discussed, plus other matters. There has been no agreement other than to examine our problems with frankness and objectivity.

"In conclusion, we agreed that such meetings can be very useful to coexistence and the friendship of our nations."

HERMES LIMA DENIES SUBVERSIVE PLOT

Rio de Janeiro Radio Mayrink Veiga in Portuguese 0100 GMT 20 December 1962-W:

(Text) Brasilia--Brazilian Premier Hermes Lima, after consultation with the Council of Ministers on 19 December, issued the following official note:

"I am authorized to state that reports about a plan for rebellion throughout Brazil scheduled for January are baseless. These reports, which stemming from certain isolated facts, attempt to establish an atmosphere of alarm and even panic, whose purpose is less to fight extremism than to confuse national public opinion at the very moment the process toward normalization of Brazilian institutional life is being completed.

"The nation can rest assured that through all the media of information and control at its disposal, the government is in a position to guarantee public order, insuring the normal functioning of institutions and individual freedoms.

"The government of President Joao Goulart is well aware of the incidents reported in accusations made to the police, and knows the nature and scope of these incidents. The government will not relax the vigilance which it has ceaselessly exercised throughout Brazil in connection with activities of a subversive nature.

"This duty of the government is being completed by warning public opinion regarding the malicious aims of alarmists, through which an attempt is being made to create an atmosphere of confusion by using generalizations prepared for the occasion and publicity of known orientation."

 VISIT TO HOUSTON, TEXAS
 FEBRUARY 15, 1963

This afternoon Mr. WOODROW SEALS, U. S. Attorney, Southern District of Texas, Houston, informed me that he had been advised by the Department of Justice that ROBERT F. KENNEDY, Attorney General, United States, would visit Houston on 2/15/63.

It was Mr. SEALS' information that the Attorney General would arrive at Houston International Airport at 10:00 AM above date and depart on the same day, 2/15/63, at 6:00 PM. Mr. SEALS did not know any more information with respect to the Attorney General's itinerary.

Mr. SEALS was not acquainted with the purpose of the Attorney General's visit to Houston. He did say that the Department informed him that the Attorney General would like a press conference that morning at approximately 10:30 AM in the office of the U. S. Attorney, Houston. Also, it was indicated that the Attorney General would want to meet with the heads of certain of the Federal agencies in Houston and meet the Federal Judges here. Mr. SEALS said the Department also told him the Attorney General would want a tour of the FBI office.

The above is submitted for the information of the Bureau. I will, of course, extend the usual courtesies and keep the Bureau informed of all pertinent developments.

SUBJECT: THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

The Congressional Record for Wednesday, February 20, 1968, has been reviewed and the following items contained therein have been noted for your attention.

HOUSE

The House was not in session. Its next meeting will be held on Thursday, February 21, 1968, at 12 noon.

SENATE

The proceedings of the Senate have been reviewed. One item of possible interest was Senator Williams' (R - Delaware) remarks in answer to a statement made by Congressman Powell (D - New York). Powell's statement was an answer to comments made by Williams regarding Powell's travel on Government funds and his (Powell) connection with a project in Harlem. Mr. Williams stated (page 2508), "First, a statement made by the Attorney General of the United States, in which he called the $250,000 juvenile delinquency project, which had been set up in Harlem as 'very valuable.' I do not know how valuable it is. Mr. Williams continues, "On the one hand we have the Department prosecuting this man for tax evasion and charging him with fraud; on the other hand we see the Attorney General hold a special press conference and say what a great job he is doing. It is the responsibility of the Department to enforce the law, and in doing so I suggest that the Attorney General get his mind off the 1964 election."

The Attorney General advised that he would like the background briefings on Organized Crime Matters in Chicago and New York City, which he previously mentioned be held next week. He has a speaking commitment in Louisville, Kentucky, on Monday evening, March 18, 1963.

After brief conferences with the U. S. Attorney and the Federal Judges on Tuesday morning, the Attorney General plans to leave for Chicago, arriving there at approximately 11:00 a. m. He wants to go to the FBI Office immediately on arrival and devote between three and four hours to the proposed briefing which will emphasize Organized Crime and Criminal Intelligence Matters.

The Attorney General said that, as occurred in the previous New York briefing, he would also like to learn the highlights of investigative matters in the Security field.

After a short conference with the U. S. Attorney the Attorney General plans to fly on to New York Tuesday evening.

On Wednesday, March 20, the Attorney General wants to explore with the U. S. Attorneys from New York City, Albany, and Buffalo the matter of Organized Crime, Public Corruption and Gambling. He is particularly concerned with the relationship between New York City and Upstate New York and therefore desires to have in attendance at this conference, in addition to the U. S. Attorneys mentioned, representatives of the FBI and Internal Revenue Service in both Albany and Buffalo, as well as New York City proper.

On Thursday, March 21, the Attorney General proposes to visit the FBI Office in New York City and devote about four hours there in order that he may be brought up-to-date on the background briefing given him last year.

The Attorney General proposes to return to Washington late Thursday, March 21, 1963.

SUBJECT: TRAVEL OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The Attorney General mentioned that it would be most helpful if the Bureau automobile used to transport him in New York City were equipped with a commercial radio so that he could listen to the current news broadcasts.

The New York Office has usually assigned a Special Agent from the criminal squad to meet the Attorney General, as these Agents are most familiar with the city, the location of the U. S. Attorney's Office, the Police Department, etc. To insure that the automobile used is always clean and properly representative of our equipment, it has been the practice to use the car regularly assigned to the Assistant Special Agent in Charge of the Criminal Division of the New York Office.

I checked with New York and ascertained that the only regular Bureau automobile now equipped with a commercial radio is the one assigned to the Special Agent in Charge.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN:

While the New York Office can of course use the automobile assigned to the Special Agent in Charge, when meeting the Attorney General, there will be times when this automobile will not be available. Accordingly, it is felt that for the minimum expense involved, the New York Office should be instructed to equip a second automobile with a commercial radio. If approved, the New York Office will be so advised.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

The Congressional Record for Monday, March 11, 1963, has been reviewed and the following items contained therein have been noted for your attention.

SENATE

R. L. T. F.

Pages 3668-3670. Senator Williams, (R) Delaware, stated "today I wish to discuss a new policy of the Kennedy administration under which the Attorney General of the United States has commandeered the U. S. Coast Guard to act as his special nursemaid when sailing his sloop on the Chesapeake Bay." Mr. Williams' remarks are the result of instructions from the Attorney General's office to the Coast Guard last October requesting that the Coast Guard make arrangements to provide communication with the boat carrying the Attorney General. Mr. Williams included a letter signed by Admiral E. J. Roland, Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, confirming these arrangements. Williams also included a statement by the Attorney General in answer to his (Williams) remarks. The Attorney General, in replying, commented on the fact that Williams waited five months to bring up the matter. Mr. Williams stated "First I answer the Attorney General as to why it took me 5 months to develop the facts. The answer is very simple—I do not have the entire FBI at my disposal where I can order them out in the middle of the night to interview prospective witnesses."

In the original of a memorandum captioned and dated as above, the Congressional Record for 3-11-63 was reviewed and pertinent items were marked for the Director's attention. This form has been prepared in order that portions of a copy of the original memorandum may be clipped, mounted, and placed in appropriate Bureau case or subject matter files.

MEMO BY COUCH

62 MAR 29 1963 F-56

One hundred years ago, Abraham Lincoln, a son of Kentucky, proclaimed that all persons held as slaves in the area of rebellion, "henceforward shall be free."

We join today, in the Centennial of that proclamation to rededicate ourselves to the parallel doctrine that all Americans, of whatever race or creed, shall also be equal.

The Emancipation Proclamation was an act of great courage and great clarity. As Lincoln went to sign it, he said:

"If my name goes down in history, it will be for this act. My whole soul is in it. If my hand trembles when I sign this proclamation, all who examine the document hereafter will say: 'He hesitated.'

But Lincoln's hand did not tremble. He did not hesitate. As always, he saw with greater vision than those around him what issues were at stake in the war. He called the Proclamation an act of justice and invoked upon it the "considered judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God."

On another occasion, he tied his act to the essence of our national purpose, saying, "In giving freedom to the slave, we assure freedom to the free."

The signing of the Emancipation Proclamation started the Clock of progress ticking toward the day when all Americans could live, in practice, according to the national ideal that all men are born free, with equal opportunity to obtain justice and equal opportunity to pursue--and obtain--happiness.

But a quarter century later, the clock practically stopped. For the next fifty years, the doctrine of "separate but equal" lay like a dead hand on the springs of progress. The nation had not retained nor understood the clarity of Lincoln's purpose.

It was another son of Kentucky who saw most precisely when our nation stopped moving ahead towards equal opportunity for all Americans. Mr. Justice John Marshall Harlan, a former slave owner himself, and an opponent of the enactment of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution, was a native of Boyle County who served on the Supreme Court of the United States for 33 years. His was a dissenting voice on questions of racial equality and the commands of the Constitution, but it, also, was a voice of great clarity.

In 1883 the Court struck down what was to be the last action of Congress in the civil rights field from 1875 to 1957. Justice Harlan predicted in his dissent to that opinion that "we shall enter upon an era of constitutional law, when the rights of freedom and American citizenship cannot receive from the nation that efficient protection which heretofore was unhesitatingly accorded to slavery and the rights of the master."

Thirteen years later, the Supreme Court put its stamp of approval on the practice of segregation. But again the vision of the American ideal was in a Harlan dissent. He saw that segregation "puts the brand of servitude and degradation upon a large class of our fellow citizens, our equals before the law." He said that the practice in the long run "gives no other result than to render permanent peace impossible and to keep alive a conflict of races, the continuance of which must do harm to all concerned."

He said, "Our Constitution is color-blind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens."

In our generation, that view is no longer expressed in dissent. It represents the view of the majority of our nation. We can see now, with the vision and clarity of Lincoln and Harlan, the toll exacted by discrimination --whether overt segregation or covert bigotry.

And when we talk about the human rights guaranteed by the Constitution, we must talk about both segregation and bigotry, whether in the North or in the South. Lincoln said, "The North responds to the proclamation sufficiently in breath." There is a very great need for the North to respond to the deprivation of rights in action as well.

Our effort cannot be directed only against open discrimination in one area, while ignoring the real deprivation of opportunity caused by indirect discrimination in another.

As President Kennedy said just three weeks ago:

"The Negro baby born in America today--regardless of the section or state in which he is born--has about one-half as much chance of completing high school as a white baby born in the same place on the same day--one-third as much chance of completing college--one-third as much chance of becoming a professional man--twice as much chance of becoming unemployed--about one-seventh as much chance of earning $10,000 per year--a life expectancy which is seven years less--and the prospects of earning only half as much."

Lincoln described the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation as the central act of his administration and "the great event of the Nineteenth Century." Today, we can maintain that America's present accelerating effort toward the fulfillment of Lincoln's central act is the great event of our century.

We have come to the time in our history to show the world and ourselves --what our ideals mean in practice: that Americans are generous, not merely affluent; that we are concerned with character, not with color; that, in Lincoln's words about his proclamation we seek progress "not in anger, but in expectation of a greater good."

We have a lot to do. With your help--with the help of Americans of vision and goodwill everywhere--I believe and I pray that we will do so. Kentucky, the mother of Lincoln and of Harlan, will be, under the leadership of Governor Combs, in the front ranks of the forward march.

ENCLOSURE

Thus, I am especially happy to be here tonight to participate in this observation, not only of what Lincoln did a hundred years ago, but of what we must do today.

We must make sure that the Negro citizens of all states can fully and freely exercise their franchise. This may take strenuous litigation and great energy on the part of many people. But it is worthwhile as we have found out in the past two years. Under existing law the Department of Justice has filed 35 suits--25 of them in this Administration--to end discrimination against Negroes who seek to vote.

Some southern states use a literacy test to deny Negroes the right to register. As a result, barely literate whites, coached by the registrar, are allowed to register and vote. Meanwhile, Negroes--including scientists with national research grants or teachers with advanced degrees--are declared arbitrarily to be illiterate and thus denied the right to vote.

The difficulty is that each one of these cases require extremely detailed preparation and many months to litigate. In Ouachita Parish, Louisiana, for example, the Department filed suits in July, 1961. Although 24,000 of 40,000 eligible whites were registered to vote, only 725 of the 16,000 eligible Negroes were registered. In the 21 months since we brought the suit, a special election for Congress has passed. A general election has passed. Still not even the date for trial has been set.

But the results are worth the effort. Where the voting suits have been completed, Negroes have been registered in increasing numbers. In Bullock County, Alabama, 5 Negroes were registered last September. Now there are a thousand. In neighboring Macon County, 2,800 Negroes are registered today. Only a handful were allowed to register there in 1961.

To speed up this process, the President has asked Congress to authorize that voting suits be given priority on the dockets and be expedited.

We must achieve equal education opportunities for all our children regardless of race. Segregated schools cause educational as well as psychological difficulties and the resulting drain on our greatest resource--the spirit and knowledge of our children--must be eliminated.

We may observe, with as much sadness as irony that outside of Africa, south of the Sahara where education is still a difficult challenge, the only places on earth known not to provide free public education are Communist China, North Vietnam, Sarawak, Singapore, British Honduras--and Prince Edward County, Virginia.

But while the situation at Prince Edward County or the violence which occurred last fall in the University of Mississippi may capture the headlines, the far more important fact is that an increasing number of southern communities, local officials, and citizen groups are working effectively to desegregate their schools peacefully and without fanfare. Last year, for example, 60 southern school districts were desegregated without any difficulty whatsoever.

It should be our goal to make it possible for any child who wishes to do so to enter the same public schools on the same basis as they are made available to children of another race.

We must continue achieving equal job opportunities for all our people. We must do this because we have proved to ourselves and to the world that it is the quality of the man, and not the color of his skin, which determines who can serve on our courts; who can hold high public office; who can exercise great responsibilities in office; who can produce miracles of science or our educational institutions. This has now been shown by example after example, until examples are no longer necessary.

And finally, we must move ahead throughout the country in achieving, for all our citizens, access to public places and the freedom to live where they choose.

President Kennedy said in his message last month: "No act is more contrary to the spirit of our democracy and Constitution than the barring of (any Negro) citizen from restaurants, hotels, theaters, recreational areas and other public accommodations and facilities."

In the past three years alone, many states by law and many cities by voluntary act have ended a century of such discrimination. And last year, as a result of federal action, virtually every bus station, every railroad station, and every airport in the South was desegregated. It is now possible to travel from Seattle to Key West and not see signs "whites only" or "colored only."

Many states and cities as well as the federal government through executive order last fall also have moved to open communities to Negro residents. By the end of this decade we will have gone much, much further down this road.

We are, in short, turning a corner--in a period of great and intense change.

Once again the mark of this change is seen with clarity here in Kentucky. Only today, Governor Combs has issued a Code of Fair Practice, following the establishment of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights and the Louisville Human Relations Commission. This is a wise and long step for the State of Kentucky. It is also a reflection of how far all the American people have gone in understanding the wisdom of the Emancipation itself, and the dissents of Justice Harlan.

In the last analysis, the changes of this decade are not going to be those of the federal government or of the states or the cities. They will come, rather, as is right in a free society, from the people themselves--from their hearts and their minds and consciences.

The Kentucky Code of Fair Practice shows how the states can assert their responsibilities and thus preserve their rights. And my own experience in the Department of Justice over the past two years has convinced me beyond question that the vast majority of the people in all the states--in the North, South, East and West--want to obey the law, and that the American people as a whole demand progress in this field and will not accept the status quo.

The problems that remain are massive. The results of racial discrimination carry on for generation after generation. To face this openly, and to try to meet it squarely, is the challenge of this decade of change.

It is one thing to free the franchise for all our citizens. It is another to persuade everyone that they should register and vote, and still another to learn to exercise the franchise wisely.

It is one thing to open the schools to all children regardless of race. It is another to train the teachers, to build the classrooms, and to attempt to eliminate the effects of past educational deficiencies. It is still another to find ways to feed the incentive to learn and keep children in school.

It is one thing to open job opportunities. It is another to train people to fill them, or to persuade American enterprise to seek Negro as well as white applicants.

It is one thing to free new housing for all citizens regardless of race. It is another to enable more Negroes to have the means to take advantage of decent housing.

The federal government, the states, each city, and all organizations which have devoted their energies to the cause of racial justice, should recognize clearly that these are the challenges of the future: that meeting them requires a great outpouring of energies of a very different kind than the instruments of government and the private organizations have used in the past.

The Emancipation Proclamation had and has great meaning for America. It has brought the American Negro within calling distance at least of all the privileges and protections of our Constitution and Bill of Rights. It has given him the freedom to speak his mind.

But for this reason and for others it is clear that the meaning and reach of the Emancipation are by no means confined to the boundaries of the United States. If it was true, as Jefferson said, that the American revolution belonged to all mankind, the same may be said--in fact must be said--of the the Emancipation.

Its message sweeps like a great tide which will enter and wash out every crevice of unjust privilege in the world. It has meaning for the underprivileged and struggling masses of our own hemisphere. For millions of them are still slaves to hunger, disease, illiteracy, and abject poverty.

Must any nation or group of nations which systematically bring the individual to his knees before the will of the State--which, more often than not, means the whims of a small group of self-centered men.

The bowed heads of the world are no longer those of American Negroes. They belong, rather, to the unfortunate millions living under communism and other forms of tyranny.

The act we celebrate today must not be considered a purely American experience. It is a torch that men will pass from hand to hand into every dark place in the world where slavery, of one kind or another, exists.

This work will go forward firmly, without malice and with charity not merely because of the Cold War but, as the President has said, "because it is right."

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Memorandum

TO : The Director

DATE: 4/12/63

FROM : N. P. Callahan

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages A2242-A2244. Congressman Thompson, (D) New Jersey, intended his remarks to include an article from the New York Times Sunday magazine written by Anthony Lewis entitled "What Drives Bobby Kennedy - An Appraisal of the Qualities That Have Put Him, at 37, at the Center of Power." Mr. Thompson pointed out that this article is an "excellent profile of the brilliant Attorney General of the United States, Robert Kennedy." The article makes reference to the night interview of newsmen. The article states "The FBI episode, in fact, seems to have been simply a bureaucratic mixup. It was in the afternoon that the Attorney General asked for an investigation. For reasons it has not explained, the FBI waited until after midnight to call on the reporters."

Original filed in: 66-1731-2

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Today the Attorney General testified in U. S. District Court in Baltimore in the case against former Congressman Thomas F. Johnson of Maryland and former Congressman Frank W. Boykin of Alabama. This case is the Conflict of Interests and Conspiracy case which has been on trial in Baltimore for the last several days. He was on the stand from approximately 10:30 A.M. to 1:00 P.M. and withstood a lengthy cross examination.

He thereafter went to luncheon with U. S. Attorney Joseph Tydings and Mrs. Tydings and Mrs. Millard Tydings, widow of the former Senator. He left Baltimore approximately 2:00 P.M. to return to Washington. I was available in my office during the entire time he was in Baltimore, but he did not call upon me or ask to see me.

Original File No. 58-432-231
Today Lou Corbin, News Director, Radio Station WFBR, Baltimore, and a close friend of the Baltimore Office, advised me that recently Baltimore County, which is adjacent to the City of Baltimore, has had a ban on burning of leaves in the county. He stated that sometime during the past weekend he understood that one of the forest rangers or firemen of Baltimore County approached a man about burning leaves. As a result, this man assaulted him. The man who committed the assault was Federal Judge R. Dorsey Watkins of Baltimore. Corbin stated that he had this information on very good authority, but had not been able to verify it yet. However, he understood that the county was submitting a detailed report concerning the matter to Thomas A. Finan, Attorney General for the State of Maryland.

I thought you would be interested in knowing about these two matters.

With kindest personal regards, 13 APR 24 1963

Will Sit In—

RFK-Wallace Meeting Arranged By Ed Reid

MONTGOMERY, April 23 (AP) — Executive director Ed Reid of the Alabama League of Municipalities has confirmed that he arranged the conference between Gov. George Wallace and Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Reid, one of Alabama's best-known political figures, said he made the arrangements at Kennedy's request, and later was asked by the attorney general to sit in on Thursday's conference.

The league director said Kennedy called him last week and "asked me to see if I could arrange a meeting between him and Gov. Wallace."

Kennedy called him again yesterday, Reid said, and told him, "you're a friend of the President and a good friend of the governor. I think it would be good if you could be there." Reid said the governor agreed.

Wallace announced last Saturday that he had agreed to meet with the attorney general in the chief executive's office here at 9 a.m. Thursday.

U. S. Atty. Ben Hardeman said today Kennedy would meet with newsmen at 6 p.m. tomorrow after he arrives here.

Following his meeting with the governor, Kennedy plans to confer with U. S. district attorneys in Alabama and also confer later with officials in Georgia and South Carolina before returning to Washington.

Reid, who said he knows President Kennedy but is not personally acquainted with his brother, the attorney general, said he thought the conference will "result in a friendlier feeling in Washington toward Alabama."

The veteran municipal official met the President when Kennedy spoke at a meeting of the League of Municipalities in Birmingham in 1957, before he was elected.

A native of Georgiana, Reid, 53, has long been active in Democratic Party affairs. The onetime newspaperman has been executive director of the municipalities' organization since 1935 and has been on close terms with many governors, congressmen and Federal officials.

Governor, RFK meet Thursday

BY JAMES FREE, News Washington correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 24—Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy is traveling by airplane late today to Alabama, where a drama-packed "eyeball to eyeball" confrontation with Gov. George Wallace is set for 9 a.m. Thursday in the governor's office.

The face-to-face meeting of the ~~the government please carrying~~ two balm-sized scrappers could have significant influence on future events in the state on two fronts:

1. DESEGREGATION. Wallace ~~confined to~~ personal resistance to court school desegregation orders; Kennedy has made it plain that federal court orders will be enforced with whatever level of force is required.

2. POLITICAL. Wallace is an avowed opponent of President Kennedy's re-election effort next year and a bidder for leadership of an independent Deep South party. The President's brother, Robert, will once again lead his campaign and do everything he can to line up support for John F. Kennedy's ticket in the South and elsewhere.

THIS IS NOT to suggest that any "deals" or compromises will be worked out, or even suggested by either man when they meet Thursday. But they will be looking ~~each other over carefully~~, judging one another's temperament, degree of self-discipline—any factor that can help them size up the other man's words and actions in the inevitable clashes that lie ahead.

Both men are tough and self-confident. It would be a surprise if either one "flunks" or gives any ground from previously-stated positions.

Yet this historic encounter, curiously, might help both men in the crises to come. For if they can keep their tempers, at least they will understand each other better. There will be less chance of misunderstanding, of needless or accidental "war."

Guthman confirmed that "feelers" on Kennedy's meeting with Wallace were made through Ed E. Reid, executive director of the Alabama League of Municipalities. Reid, a longtime friend of Wallace, was an early supporter of John F. Kennedy for president, though Reid later became disenchanted with JFK on several scores.

REID BROUGHT together former Gov. John Patterson and the then-candidate for president, Sen.

~~John F. Kennedy. And Patterson~~ was one of several Southern governors who backed Kennedy's bid for the White House in 1960. But the former governor had harsh words for both John and Robert Kennedy as a result of the "freedom rider" incidents in Birmingham and Montgomery in 1961.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S schedule:

Today: 5 p.m., arrives at Maxwell Air Force Base; 5:45, appears on WSFA-TV's "Guest Room"; 6, press conference; 6:30, conference with U. S. attorneys.

Thursday: 8 a.m., conference with Judge Richard T. Rives, Montgomery, member of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Federal District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr.; at 9 a.m., conference with Gov. George Wallace.

Kennedy will spend the night at Maxwell and leave by 11 a.m. ~~at~~ ~~from~~ ~~for~~ ~~Columbia~~

Wallace will go on TV after Kennedy meeting

News Capital Bureau

MONTGOMERY, April 24—Gov. George C. Wallace will deliver a statewide television address at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, his office announced this afternoon.

The television appearance will come just a few hours after Wallace's scheduled meeting with U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Bill Jones, Wallace's press secretary, said the primary purpose of the statewide telecast is "to report to the people on the progress of the administration," but it was considered probable that Wallace would also discuss his meeting with Kennedy.

The governor also is expected to speak on the school tax issue before the legislature.

RFK Thinks Desegregation In State Can Be Peaceful Says University, Political Leaders Can Handle It

BY CLARKE STALLWORTH
Post-Herald Correspondent

MONTGOMERY, April 24—U. S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, who flew here for a visit with Gov. George Wallace tomorrow, said in a press conference here today that he believes Alabama desegregation problems will be settled peacefully.

"These matters can be handled peacefully by the university and political leaders. There was no need for marshals, let alone troops, at Clemson," said the tousle-haired attorney general.

"It is most important to uphold the law. This transcends the questions of segregation or integration. This was recognized in South Carolina, by political officials, by business leaders, and by local officials," he said.

Asked if he came to Alabama to "compromise" with Governor Wallace and his "stand in the school house door" stand on desegregation, Kennedy said:

"I think that's up to him. My responsibility is to uphold the law to maintain the law. I can't compromise that away. If I did, I would violate my oath of office."

He said if Wallace were U. S. attorney general, "he would do exactly as I'm doing."

He was asked if the Kennedy's could "afford" another Ole Miss racial incident, in a political sense, with the presidential election coming up next year.

"If it meant losing 50 states, I would maintain the law of the United States and follow the orders of the court," he said.

Kennedy was asked if he thought Wallace would wind up in jail, after any desegregation incident here. Smiling, Kennedy said:

"I hope Governor Wallace will not go to jail. He's got a career as the governor of Alabama. I would hope that matters could be worked out."

Arrives at Maxwell

Kennedy arrived at Maxwell Air Force Base shortly after 5 p.m. today in a "Gulfstream" turbo-jet plane belonging to the Federal Aviation Agency. He is meeting tonight with U. S. district attorneys and their assistants, along with members of Federal investigative agencies.

He meets at 8 a.m. tomorrow with Judge Richard T. Rives of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, and U. S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson.

Then, at 9 a.m. comes his meeting with Governor Wallace in the governor's office at the state Capitol. Kennedy is due to leave about 11 a.m. for Columbia, S. C., for another similar conference with Federal officials.

Ed Reid, executive director of the Alabama League of Municipalities and a friend of President Kennedy, arranged the Kennedy-Wallace talk tomorrow. Kennedy asked Reid to arrange the meeting.

On the subject of the Wallace meeting, Kennedy said that "this is a courtesy call." He said he made similar calls in other states where he visited.

Asked what will be discussed in tomorrow's meeting, Kennedy said "we'll discuss whatever he (Governor Wallace) is interested in."

Third Party

The Kennedy-Wallace talk is expected to include some discussion of a possible third party in the South. Wallace is shaping up as a possible candidate for president on a third party ticket according to sources here.

Kennedy was asked if he and the President have "written off" Alabama and Mississippi in the coming presidential election. "No," he said, "but I've seen some indication of vice versa."

"I'm a Democrat," said Kennedy. "It's unfortunate that this kind of action (the Ole Miss incident) leads Democrats away from the party."

Kennedy was asked several questions about the current demonstrations in Birmingham. The attorney general said he did not advise the Negroes, led by the Rev. Martin Luther King, to make the demonstrations.

"I believe a representative of my office discussed with someone about a change in administration (in Birmingham). Perhaps the timing of the demonstrations could be reconsidered," he said.

Asked about King's disobeying a Circuit Court order in Birmingham, Kennedy said: "I think court orders should be followed... Federal Court orders, local court orders. Court orders should be followed by Governor Ross Barnett (of Mississippi) or anybody."

There was some difference in the court orders faced by Barnett and those faced by King, he said. In the Barnett incident, Kennedy said, the orders had been issued by the highest court, while in the King instance, the constitutionality of the laws is still to be decided.

Kennedy was questioned about a picture-taking flight of Air Force jets over the University of Alabama campus. He said the flight was the "first and last . . . I think that was a very good idea." Asked if it were his idea, he said "I take the responsibility for it."

As asked about a resolution of the Alabama Legislature,

U. S. District Atty. Vernal Jansen of Mobile for a speech to a Negro group in Mobile.

I understand he (Jansen) came out for people registering to vote in elections. I think U. S. attorneys and other public officials should try to get everybody to vote in elections. In the 1960 election, 26 million people did not vote. We are in great difficulty if people don't participate in politics."

Asked to comment on a Mississippi report that U. S. marshals mistreated people at Ole Miss during the desegregation violence there, Kennedy said 180 marshals were wounded there, 26 of them by gunfire.

He said the marshals "withheld gunfire and acted with restraint." He said the people making the report in Mississippi failed to talk to any of the newspapermen covering the incident and failed to talk to the marshals themselves, and that he considered the report "inadequate."

On reports that he helped bring "Freedom Riders" to Alabama during 1961, Kennedy said, "I didn't even know they were coming to Alabama, until after the bus was burned. I did talk to the manager of the bus station (in Birmingham), in an attempt to get a bus moving out of Birmingham, but that was entirely with the approval of officials in Alabama. This conversation was used to prove that I brought the freedom riders to Alabama, which is not in accordance with the facts."

"I didn't even know they were coming," he said, "but once they were here, it was the responsibility of local law enforcement and Federal officials to see that they were protected. What I didn't like—some of these matters were being decided in the streets—were being decided by hitting somebody over the head with a club."

KENNEDY IN MONTGOMERY—Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy arrives in Montgomery and greets District Atty. Macon Weaver (in white rain coat with back to camera). Kennedy met last night with district attorneys from this state and meets with Gov. George Wallace today.

JFK May Visit State, RFK Says

Post-Herald Capital Bureau

MONTGOMERY, April 24—His brother confirmed it today: President John Kennedy may come to Alabama in the near future.

Asked at a press conference if the President were coming to Alabama for a visit soon, U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said:

"I think he might be coming to Alabama."

There have been recurring reports that President Kennedy would come to the Tennessee Valley, probably Muscle Shoals, to help celebrate the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The reports here say President Kennedy may come on his Alabama visit in about two weeks.

Wallace, Kennedy talk; neither changes views

BY JAMES FREE, News Washington correspondent

MONTGOMERY, April 25—Atty.-Gen. Robert Kennedy brought his pipe of peace to a one-hour and 22-minute meeting with Gov. George Wallace at the capitol today.

President Kennedy's brother and chief strategist declared afterwards it was "helpful" to have a frank exchange of views, but he quickly added neither he nor Wallace had changed their minds in on the conference. Their positions on civil rights were Executive Director Ed E. Reid of the Alabama League of Municipalities who arranged the session, apparently to be an ultra-polite meeting and was invited by Kennedy to attend; State Finance Director Seymour Trammell, and Justice Department's Civil Rights division.

Kennedy assured Wallace that he had rather leave integration up to the state but warned that court rulings will be enforced. Wallace declared that his position was the same as before and referred repeatedly to his campaign promise to stand in the schoolhouse door to prevent desegregation.

Both Kennedy and Wallace described the meeting as pleasant and both agreed that neither had changed his views. The governor met with the head of the Justice Department in an atmosphere of racial tension. He understood eighteen white pickets were arrested shortly before the attorney general arrived for the conference at the state Capitol.

The pickets were charged with violating a city ordinance by parading without a permit. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

THE PRESIDENT'S brother was heavily guarded as he walked through the statehouse by federal, state and local law enforcement agencies.

A governor's office spokesman said the meeting was tape-recorded and would be transcribed. He said there was a microphone on Wallace's desk.

JUST BEFORE Kennedy entered the capitol city police arrested 19 white demonstrators who arrested 19 white demonstrators. The arrests were ordered by Montgomery Asst. Police Chief D. H. Lackey.

About 40 riot-trained highway patrolmen ringed the capitol building.

Lackey said the demonstrators, who carried signs, would be charged with parading without a permit.

Rear Adm. John G. Crommelin, U. S. Navy, retired, was present but was not carrying a sign and was not arrested.

However, Crommelin protested the arrests, declaring Kennedy himself "says that anyone has a right to protest."

KENNEDY ENTERED the governor's private office about four minutes to nine—the appointed hour—and remained there until 10:15 a.m.

On the way out of the capitol, Kennedy shook hands with hundreds of state employees, children and spectators for 10 minutes. It looked like a campaign year all over again.

Reid told The News: "It was a low-toned, contructive discussion. I think it ought to be helpful to both men and given them a better understanding of each other's positions.

Kennedy said he recalled that Gov. Wallace has known his brother, President John F. Kennedy, since 1956, and supported him in 1960.

"But I remarked," said Kennedy, "that from what I've been hearing, it doesn't look like he will follow through in 1964. The governor gave no indication that last night when Kennedy arrived, he was wrong."

The squealing of teenage girls and dozens of young persons inside the capitol caused one state officer in plain clothes to remark: "They're acting like Kennedy was a crooner."

KENNEDY SAID that they discussed possible future desegregation and voting rights cases in Alabama.

"The governor has always said that he thinks these matters should be resolved by local people," the attorney general said.

"And my position has been that, so long as local people can work out these problems satisfactorily, the general government will not have to come in."

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL noted that "The governor has always been an outspoken advocate of maintaining law and order under all conditions. This is one thing on which we are in full accord."

On his way to the capitol from Maxwell Air Force Base, where he spent last night, Kennedy stopped by Reid's office building about three blocks from the Capitol. Then Kennedy, Reid and Marshall walked abreast up the hill to the Capitol.

They were trailed some 15 yards by two sidemen plus FBI agents.

They met no one until they came on the Capitol grounds. There, the first state patrolman they passed extended his hand to greet

A local reporter said that all of Kennedy smiled broadly. One reason for this may have been that Governor gave no indication that last night when Kennedy arrived, one state patrolman had declined GOV. WALLACE, answering to shake his hand, preferring to newsmen's questions following the meeting, said flatly:

Both Kennedy and Wallace wore dark gray suits and white shirts, the same as it was during the campaign last year, the same as with no conclusions or decisions reached.

With Reid, who was the only one of the three who wore a hat or two-toned shoes, with Reid, who was the only one same was at my inauguraration and the same as it was before my meeting today with Mr. Kennedy.

As Kennedy came on the porch of the State Capitol, he was guided around a wreath on the door by Mrs. J. P. Dugger, of Hone Hill. Her wreath was on a bronze inscription marking the spot where Jefferson Davis was inaugurated President of the Confederate States of America.

Mrs. Dugger explained to reporters that "I don't want the enemy to step on it."

Mrs. Dugger did not identify her organization, but said several others participated in her action since Reid had any useful face said "I just know that my position is always as it has been and I know that Mr. Kennedy's position is the same as it has always been."

The governor said the possibility of a future meeting between Wallace and the President did arise at the meeting, but he said it was "discussed in generalities" with no conclusions or decisions reached.

"We had a courteous and very frank discussion of the problems involving the state and federal governments.

"I might say also that Mr. Kennedy's position is also unchanged."

To almost every question asked about specific points of discussion between him and Kennedy, Wallace gave the same reply—"My position is unchanged."

Applause, pickets, newsmen greet REK

By TED PEARSON

News staff writer

MONTGOMERY, April 25—Robert F. Kennedy is a man of pronounced contrasts. For example, his behavior is often boyish and his looks are forever that way, but his mind is unmistakably mature and satire-sharp.

The mark of contrast stuck with Kennedy as he set foot on Alabama soil for the first time since he became the nation's attorney general.

He was applauded.

He was also picketed, but mildly so.

There are those in Alabama who probably will refuse to believe that Kennedy moved people to applause in the Cradle of the Confederacy.

BUT IT HAPPENED—on a military base, to be sure, but the loud clapping of hands rose spontaneously from a crowd of 50 or so at Maxwell Air Force Base, sprinkled liberally with civilian employes who live right here. They gathered to watch Kennedy's arrival in a state where the Kennedy name is not automatically synonymous with popularity.

Less than 15 minutes later, Kennedy ran into the pickets.

Two men bearing anti-Kennedy signs walked outside a television studio where the attorney general appeared on a quarter-hour local show. The pickets denounced the Kennedys on segregation and Cuba.

Still later, Kennedy ran into another bit of adversity.

A non-newsman "crasher" at a news conference asked Kennedy point-blank if he were a member of the NAACP or ever had been a member of the Communist Party. Kennedy turned the right-wing line drive like a major league. Grinning uncontrollably, almost laughing, his reply was, "Never, not now and not in the future."

Kennedy's cool composure fairly jumps out at you.

Here, in a city where the memory of Jefferson Davis is a thing of utter reverence and the Confederate heritage a daily fact, the strong federalist Kennedy faced 50 newsmen, sidestepped not a single question, and never got

HIS WIT WAS fresh, to the point.

"Have you and your brother, the President written off Alabama and Mississippi in next year's elections?" was a timely question Thursday for a round of conferences, including the main meeting.

"No," came the quick response. "But I have seen some indications going with Gov. Wallace of it being vice versa, however."

Another question: Did Kennedy come to Alabama "in a threatening mood" to see Gov. George Wallace?

"Now," Kennedy laughed. "I would not like to see in the next editions, The attorney general announced tonight he is not going to threaten the governor of Alabama." No, I am not threatening and it is purely a courtesy visit."

And still another question: Did Kennedy agree with a recent statement by Birmingham City Commissioner Eugene Connor that the "three things wrong with the world today are communism, socialism and journalism?"

"I'M IN FAVOR of the latter," Kennedy answered.

The attorney general made the two-hour flight from Washington to Montgomery in a Federal Aviation Agency two-engine jet.

His first greetings at Maxwell as he stepped from the plane were Lt. Gen. Troup Miller, commander of the Air University, and Col. W. J. Rigglesworth, base commander.

Also there, in addition to a corps of newsmen from inside and outside Alabama, were the three federal district attorneys in the state, Birmingham's Mason Weaver, Mobile's Vernon R. Jansen Jr. and Montgomery's Ben Hardeman.

FBI men, ever mindful of security needs, were out in force and remained with Kennedy throughout his Alabama visit.

Kennedy spent the night at visiting officer quarters at Maxwell's WES UP BRIGHT and early elections?" was a timely question Thursday for a round of confer-

"No," came the quick response. "But I have seen some indications going with Gov. Wallace of it being vice versa, however."

The Kennedy visit to Alabama culminated months of planning in a Washington. He had wanted to come earlier, but had been advised against it because of "political atmosphere" in the state.

As it turned out, everything smoothly.

DISCUSS RACIAL PROBLEMS—17 Demonstrators Arrested
As RFK, Wallace Hold Talk*FROM PRESS REPORTS

MONTGOMERY, April 25—Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy discussed Alabama's racial problems with Gov. George Wallace today in a tense atmosphere which brought the arrests of 17 white demonstrators.

But although both the governor and the President's brother said they had a pleasant, courteous" visit, neither was willing to give ground in their opposite views on segregation and states rights.

The segregationist demonstrators were taken to jail on charges of parading without a permit shortly before the Attorney General reached the historic capitol where a century ago Jefferson Davis became president of the Confederacy.

In the crowd was retired Adm. John Crommelin, an active member of the National States Rights Party. He was not arrested because he was not marching with the others, but he protested the arrests, and read the first amendment to the U. S. Constitution to one of the arresting officers.

One of the men who resisted arrest was identified as James Warner, 25, of Birmingham. He is the associate editor of "The Thunderbolt," official organ of the National States Rights Party.

Highway Patrolmen

Riot-trained State Highway patrolmen, supported by armed capitol guards, ringed the building to prevent trouble. City police patrolled the streets adjoining the statehouse.

But except for the arrests, there were no incidents, scores of state employees and others crowded onto the grounds and into the halls greeted Kennedy cordially. Many shook his hand.

As he left the capitol, Kennedy chatted with more state employees and with children visiting the statehouse.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS—Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy looks surprised when asked if he will have Gov. George Wallace of Alabama thrown in jail for disobeying integration orders. Kennedy said the governor could do as he pleases and added that he hopes Wallace will not go to jail. (UPI Telephoto).

"About 30 minutes after he finished talking with Wallace, the attorney general flew to Columbia, S. C., where he conferred with South Carolina's governor and with Federal attorneys. Kennedy goes to Atlanta Friday to talk to the Georgia governor and more Federal officials.

Kennedy and Wallace, talking separately with newsmen after their meeting, made it clear that the attorney general still feels the Federal courts must be obeyed, and the Governor remains defiant.

Position Same

Again and again, Wallace emphasized that "my position is the same as it was during the gubernatorial campaign" last year when he vowed to disobey any Federal court school integration order.

Kennedy, chatting with reporters in the Governor's outer office heavily guarded by state and federal officers, said he expressed to Wallace a hope that integration problems can be settled peacefully.

He said he would like to see local political, business and school leaders assume the responsibility for complying with court decisions without mob violence.

And, he added, "I am hopeful that no outside forces of any kind, the Federal government or any other, will interfere."

But the attorney general added firmly that "we will do whatever is necessary to enforce the orders of the courts."

Kennedy said the Governor, during their conference, "made it quite clear that he is against violence." Wallace, asked later what he told the head of the Justice Department on that matter, replied, "My position is the same as it was."

Mob Violence

When newsmen asked him to recall what he said during the campaign about preventing mob violence, the governor replied it would take an hour to go through everything he said.

The attorney General told newsmen he and Wallace discussed specifically an impending integration showdown at the University of Alabama, where Negroes have applied for admittance.

University authorities already are under a Federal court order to admit qualified Negroes, dating back to the Autherine Lucy incident of seven years ago. And Wallace as governor is ex-officio president of the Board of Trustees.

Kennedy said he is "hopeful that this matter can be resolved peacefully by the people of Alabama in accordance with the law," and that he expressed that feeling to Wallace.

The court order to refrain from denying admittance to qualified Negro applicants at the University came in 1956 when Miss Lucy, a Negro co-ed, was enrolled under a court directive.

Conciliatory Vein

In a conciliatory vein, the attorney general said he thinks now it was a mistake to have National Guard planes make aerial pictures of the University campus last December. A Justice Dept. spokesman said at the time that it was done in anticipation of possible violence.

Turning to the 1964 presidential election, Kennedy said he discussed that with the governor, too, and left the office still feeling that Wallace may not support the National Democratic Party ticket.

"I told him I read that it didn't appear that he was going to follow them (the National Democrats) in 1964," the attorney general continued. "I didn't get any answer to indicate that I was wrong."

There has been speculation that Alabama and some sister states in the South may bolt the national party again. Alabama in 1948 gave all of its electoral votes to a States Rights ticket and again in 1960, six of the 11 votes were withheld from the national party whose candidate was President Kennedy.

Short Visit

The attorney general paid a short visit to Grover Hall, editor-in-chief of the Montgomery Advertiser which has supported the Republican Party in the last three presidential races.

Aides said Kennedy assured Wallace he would like to keep the race situation up to Alabama but that court rulings would be enforced.

Kennedy and Wallace both declined to comment on the arrests of the white segregationists outside the capitol. Both said they knew nothing about it.

Security Officers

Security officers watched the demonstrators assemble but made no attempt to stop them until they began marching on a side walk with placards held above their heads.

Then Asst. Montgomery Police Commissioner suit is pending, and told Chief D. H. Lackey, talking them that the nation must make through a loudspeaker, ordered progress in its race relations now them to disperse because they or face real trouble a decade had no parade permit. When the front now, three minutes was up that he had allowed them, Lackey sang out, with Gov. Donald S. Russell in "You are being arrested for parading without a permit."

One man resisted and was forcibly put into a paddy wagon with the others and taken to jail.

A Confederate flag flew high above the capitol today, but the governor's office said Kennedy's visit had nothing to do with it. Press Secretary Bill Jones said Wallace had ordered the flag weeks ago and it had just arrived. Normally the state flag flies from the capitol dome and the U. S. flag from a pole on the lawn.

Men Identified

City police identified the men booked as Warner, R. L. Mc crief, 25, and John W. Moncrief, 21, Floyd Cuippepper, 20, Howard

Hudson, Odie D. Carr, 22, H. N.

Bailey, 36, and William B. in

Oscar W. Gazzel, 36, of Prattville; Paul E. Stimp, 22, of

Just minutes before the demonstration began, an Alabama woman, Mrs. J. F. Duggar of Hope Hull, placed a wreath of flowers on the famed star on the Capitol steps -- where Jefferson Davis stood more than 100 years ago when he was inaugurated as the first president of the Confederacy. She said, "I just didn't want an enemy foot to step on the star where Jeff Davis stood."

Kennedy Arrived

When Kennedy arrived to meet the governor a shout from the crowd warned "Don't step on those flowers" as he went into the capitol shaking hands with the people in the milling crowd.

Later at Columbia, S. C., the attorney general addressed law students at all-white University of South Carolina, where an integration suit is pending, and told them to disperse because they or face real trouble a decade had no parade permit. When the front now,

After a 25-minute "social visit" allowed them, Lackey sang out, with Gov. Donald S. Russell in "You are being arrested for parading without a permit."

Nobody went to the University where he told the students he was proud of the way the admission of Negro Harvey Gantt into Clemson College was handled last January. Gantt was the first Negro to break the segregation barrier on any level of education in the state.

"The way it (the Clemson case) was handled is the way it should be handled in all of the United States," the attorney general said. He predicted that current racial troubles of "agitation and bloodshed will not compare to what we will see a decade from now unless real progress is made."

Wallace Reserved

Trammell Needles RFK At Meeting

BY CLARKE STALLWORTH
Post-Herald Staff Writer

MONTGOMERY, April 25—Shortly before 9 a.m. today U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy walked into the office of Gov. George Wallace.

Pleasantries were exchanged. Hands were shaken.

Sitting in the room were Gov. Wallace; Mr. Kennedy; Alabama Finance Director Seymour Trammell; Burke Marshall, head of the Civil Rights Division of the U. S. Justice Dept., and Ed E. Reid, executive director of the Alabama League of Municipalities.

Wallace began the conference with a joke about the Confederate flag hung behind his desk.

Wallace then pointed to a microphone and tape-recorder and asked if Kennedy minded if the conference were taped. Kennedy said he didn't mind.

Down To Business

After a few moments Kennedy sat down to business. "Governor, while I am here, I'd like to talk about some things likely to come up in Alabama," he told Wallace.

Kennedy said "We are hoping there won't be any problem here in Alabama" in the desegregation area. When a court order comes, he told Wallace that "we hope you will go along with it."

Kennedy told Wallace that he had read things in the newspaper which he hoped Wallace didn't mean.

Wallace told Kennedy that he reserved the right to disagree with him "over what the law is. I am going to test this thing in the hope that it will be resolved and we will still have segregation down here."

The governor argued with Kennedy about "what is the law of the land." Wallace questioned the effect of the 1954 Supreme Court decision, and questioned

During the conference, Wallace remarked that he had supported President Kennedy in the 1956 Democratic Convention for vice president, and that he supported President Kennedy in the 1960 election.

"From what I read in the papers, that's not likely to happen in 1964," said Kennedy.

Kennedy Relaxed

During the talks, Wallace was somewhat reserved and Kennedy was relaxed.

The only flurry of hard words came when Trammell ~~asked~~ asking Kennedy if he planned to send troops to Alabama. Kennedy repeatedly said he had no plans to do this.

Finally Kennedy turned to Trammell and said: "It seems like you want us to send troops in. It seems like you want drastic action with the governor." Kennedy said in effect that Trammell did not appear to be seeking a peaceful solution, but instead wanted Federal troops sent in.

Trammell told him that, "You haven't said you wouldn't send troops, and you haven't said you wouldn't put the governor in jail."

"I haven't said I would, either," said Kennedy.

At the end of the conference, it was agreed that the tape recording of the conference would not be released unless both Wallace and Kennedy agreed to its release.

Finally, shortly after 10 a.m., Kennedy and Marshall left the governor's office and headed for Maxwell Field. Here they caught a plane for a conference with U. S. District Attorney in South Carolina.

Trammell Interrupts
Seymore Trammell broke in, asking Kennedy if he was going to send troops to Alabama, in the event of a desegregation incident.

"We have no plans to do that. We believe the situation can be solved peacefully," Kennedy told him, in effect. "We believe the problem can be solved in the courts."

Trammell asked Kennedy if he planned to put Wallace in jail for resisting any desegregation order.

"~~We have~~ no plans for that," said Kennedy.

Mr. Kennedy's Visit

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy has come and gone from Montgomery—and apparently nothing much is changed as far as the state—or Kennedy—are concerned.

Not that any change was expected. Mr. Kennedy's visit was one of the many trips in which he is meeting with U. S. district attorneys over the nation. His conference yesterday with Gov. George Wallace was just thrown in for good measure, officially anyway.

Actually, we all should realize that wherever a Kennedy or any other officeholder is concerned, these trips have political overtones.

The whole Kennedy family is aware that next year is election year and that their Democratic Party is going to have rough sailing in the South.

It seems likely that President Kennedy will dip down into Alabama next month when he visits in Tennessee. Undoubtedly he is trying to mend political fences and all the party stalwarts are trying to help him.

We must realize also that much politics is involved in the issue which separates the Kennedys from a great bulk of Southern Democrats—integration.

Robert Kennedy said in Montgomery yesterday, after talking with Governor Wallace, "The governor has always said that he thinks these matters should be resolved by local people. And my position has been that, so long as local people can work out these problems satisfactorily, the general government will not have to move in."

The catch here is "so long as local people can work out these problems satisfactorily." It means satisfactorily to officials in Washington.

And their satisfactorily yardstick usually is political.

There are indications that other sections of the country are beginning to realize that the integration issue is being used for political effect by the party in power (as the Republicans also have done). Perhaps its effectiveness will be lessened. We hope so.

JFK's Visit To Alabama Confirmed

President Kennedy will visit Alabama in about two weeks, his brother, U. S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy told Gov. Wallace yesterday in a meeting at the Governor's office.

Kennedy also said he hoped his brother and Wallace would get together.

There have been recurring reports that President Kennedy will visit the Tennessee Valley, probably Muscle Shoals, for a celebration of the 30th anniversary of the Tennessee Valley Authority.
