ESPIONAGE - R [REDACTED]

DATE: June 11, 1951

For information of the Bureau, one [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] telephoned this office June 7, 1951 in reference to a radio broadcast he had heard concerning the recent disappearance of the two British diplomats, one of whom was GUY BURGESS. [REDACTED] advised that in 1942, he was acquainted with a man named BURGESS who represented himself to be an undercover agent for the British government and who might be identical with GUY BURGESS. ()

[REDACTED] stated the BURGESS he knew questioned him about German shipping and British shipping in the New York harbor area. He received the impression that BURGESS was possibly a Nazi agent and his (REDACTED) father wrote the British Embassy in Washington, D. C. to ascertain whether BURGESS was a British employee. One [REDACTED], Acting British Counsul, New York City, advised [REDACTED] on August 24, 1942 that they had no employee named BURGESS. ()

Following receipt of that information, [REDACTED] purposely avoided further contact with BURGESS. [REDACTED] said he first met BURGESS in the Hotel Pennsylvania bar, New York City, at which time BURGESS resided at Riverside Drive at approximately 72nd Street, New York City. BURGESS represented himself to be a psychiatrist assigned to military hospitals in New York and New Hampshire, cities unknown. [REDACTED] also received a letter in 1942 from BURGESS postmarked "Peterborough, New Hampshire". ()

[REDACTED] has had no contact with BURGESS since 1942, but recently learned from a friend that BURGESS was in New York City approximately one month ago. [REDACTED] said he once visited a private children's school in New York City with BURGESS and that the head of the school, who was a woman, spoke with a German accent. He does not recall the location of instant school, but states he might be able to locate it if he were to visit New York City. ()

[REDACTED] stated he believes that the BURGESS he knew may be identical with GUY BURGESS, the missing British diplomat. ()

He furnished the following description of BURGESS:

Sex	Male
Race	White
Age	35 in 1942
Build	Heavy set
Complexion	Dark

NK [REDACTED]

The foregoing is being furnished for information of the Bureau, and no action is being taken at Newark. (u)

Attached is a newspaper clipping from "France Soir", of June 12, 1951, to the effect that "50 G-men have arrived in Paris to aid the DST (Direction du Surveillance du Territoire of the Surete Nationale) to smash the PONTECORVO route." It is indicated that this (sending of agents to France) had been decided before the disappearance of HURGESS and MAC LEAN.

The article goes on to say that the English, French and American intelligence services are collaborating in an effort to smash a Soviet Espionage network. This joint operation was supposedly decided upon about one month ago in Washington, D. C. Reportedly, Sir PERCY SILLITOE of MI-5, departed for the United States by plane last night in order to confer with the Director of the FBI concerning the matter.

As a result of this article and other reports in Paris papers, this office received numerous telephone calls on June 11 from various people. The callers were, of course, given "no comment" replies.

Pourquoi et comment Mac Lean et Burgess sont partis

LA volte des deux diplomates britanniques pour une série de problèmes qui, pour le moment, sembleront imprévisibles à plusieurs. Pourquoi sont-ils partis ?

Depuis plusieurs années, plusieurs personnes se posent cette question, si l'on croit ce que Mac Lean et Burgess ont dit de leur départ. On ne peut évidemment pas établir une liste d'hypothèses, dont aucune n'est entièrement satisfaisante.

Guy Francis De Moncy BURGESS

En 1941, alors qu'il était étudiant à la Sorbonne, il fut nommé chargé d'affaires au Consulat général de France à Paris. Pendant la guerre, il fut affecté dans les questions russes.

Travaillant pendant la guerre au MI 6, le service de contre-espionnage du ministère de la Guerre. Pendant cette période, personnellement, ses connaissances du russe furent telles qu'au temps de guerre, il fut nommé à l'école d'officiers d'interprétation du Foreign Office, comme interprète russe. M. Master MacLean, également d'Eton, reconnut très rapidement, le fait notable officiellement dans le corrier diplomatique, que le grand comte chef de cabinet adjoint en 1947.

En octobre 1950, fut désigné comme directeur technique chargé des questions d'Extrême-Orient et de la préparation de traité de paix avec le Japon aux U.S.A.

Renvoyé de Washington, il demanda au Secrétaire de l'Intérieur, pour avoir été surpris au travail de sa volonté en étant déporté.

Salaire : 750 livres ($750.000 francs). Fortune personnelle,

LEAN & BURGESS

Fugue sentimentale

POUR : mauvaise réputation de Burgess. Difficultés de mariage de Donald MacLean et peur pour les fréquentations masculines, affirmait mortuairement.

CONTRE : l'énorme popularité accordée dans le monde entier à leur disparition les aurait certainement poussés à renoncer les autorités.

Une grande aventure

POUR : tous deux avaient la réputation de faire plus qu'il n'était normal de le faire.

CONTRE : même le plus pale des cendres à Paris ne pourrait pas durer quinze jours.

Chantage

POUR : leur vie secrète aurait fourni à des agents politiques ou autres des arguments puissants (menace de dévoiler certains vices) auxquels ils n'auraient pas pu résister.

CONTRE : les accusations de trahison portées contre eux sont bien plus graves que des accusations concernant leurs mœurs et cela les aurait déjà amenés certainement à faire connaître leur cachette.

Mission de paix

POUR : Burgess était un bon négociateur. Il a pu croire qu'il réussirait auprès des Russes à établir un climat de paix à la fin des échecs pendant la guerre auprès des Anglais. Il avait assez d'autorité sur MacLean pour l'empêcher dans une situation de ce genre.

CONTRE : dans ce cas, pourquoi ne pas avoir demandé conseil à un congé pour partir dans les conditions normales.

Désaccord politique

POUR : leurs deux connaissances à fond la politique américaine. Elles leur déplaçaient profondément et les poussaient à abandonner le Foreign Office plutôt que de l'appuyer.

CONTRE : Ils auraient pu, tout au contraire, démissionner.

Fugue politique

POUR : les deux hommes étaient peut-être des communautés grecques, ayant bien caché leur jeu, comme l'avait fait avant eux Fuchs et Ponte-Corvo.

CONTRE : Ils seraient plus utiles pour les communautés à New York, où ils étaient certainement au courant des dérives socialistes, qu'à Moscou où, après avoir dévoué tout ce qu'ils avaient — et qui est considérable — ils ne seraient plus d'autant utiles pour la politique soviétique.

Agents à bordés

POUR : si Burgess et MacLean, responsables de quelques diplomates, étaient surveillés à Londres (ce qui semble surtout irrécusable pour Burgess, après son rappel des U.S.), leur départ avec un bateau de marchandise, leur donner l'occasion de fuir les grandes portes et les départs où la surveillance étatique faciliterait leur évasion.

CONTRE : dans ce cas, les diplomates ne se seraient pas arrêtés au France et MacLean ne serait pas rendu plus facile comme à Paris où il pouvait prendre difficilement racine.

Donald Duart MAC LEAN

En 1941, alors qu'il était étudiant à la Sorbonne, il fut nommé chargé d'affaires à Paris. Attaché à l'ambassade de Grande-Bretagne à Paris en 1943, il fut quelques jours avant la chute de Paris à une retraite américaine, dans l'île de Manley, dans l'île de Jersey.

Admis après concours au Foreign Office en 1945, attaché à l'ambassade de Grande-Bretagne à Paris en 1946, il fut quelques jours avant la chute de Paris à une retraite américaine, dans l'île de Manley, dans l'île de Jersey.

Travaillé au Foreign Office pendant la guerre. Envoyé à Washington en 1946, comme plénier特别使节; à Caracas en 1948, comme conseiller. Enfin, au Caire, des « relations » (fréquentations) et incidents avec une jeune Américaine qui menaçait un traitement psychologique. Ce qui ne l'empêche pas d'être, au regard de ces histoires relations, commandant chef du département des Etats-Unis du Foreign Office, un poste important, mais qui connaît tous les détails de la stratégie du monde occidental et des succès du plan Marshall.

Ils achètent un billet spécial pour la gare dont billets aillent et reviennent pour Belinf-Malo.

LEAN & BURGESS

Arrivée à une gare de Belinf-Malo

Burgess entre dans la gare de Belinf-Malo, alors que MacLean reste dans le hall.

Après être rentré tard dans la nuit, il a été accueilli par les deux hommes partis ce matin pour Boulogne. Ils ont alors pris leur place dans le départ de Cette action était décidée avant la fuite de Burgess et Mac Lean, qui auraient déjà franchi le rideau de fer.

A Washington, conférence | A Londres, déclaration aux F.B.I.-Intelligence Service | Aux Comunes de Morrison

BURGESS et Mac Lean, les deux diplomates britanniques disparus depuis le 25 mai, sont introuvable. On signale leur passage partout, mais on ne les découvre nulle part. M. Morrison, ministre des Affaires étrangères britanniques, fera ce midi, aux Comunes, une déclaration à leur sujet. Mais d'ores et déjà, il fait que, malgré la publicité donnée à leur aventure et les graves accusations portées contre eux, il n'aient pas donné signe de vie, renforce dans les milieux politiques britanniques l'hypothèse suivant laquelle il s'agirait d'une grave affaire politique et d'une folie au-delà du rideau de fer.

Le célèbre caricaturiste allemand Hansi, de son vrai nom Joseph Weiß, est mort hier après-midi, dans un hôpital de Berlin-Est, à l'âge de 72 ans. Commandeur de l'ordre national de la République fédérale d'Allemagne, il a été distingué pour ses réalisations artistiques contre les Allemans dans leur lutte pour l'indépendance et l'autonomie. Il a été enterré à Berlin-Est, dans un petit cimetière d'Allemagne de l'Est, par l'ancien Ministre de l'

Les polices britanniques sont aux aguets, et des G-men (agents spéciaux du F.B.I., l'agence fédérale d'investigation) sont en collaboration avec les polices françaises et américaines pour découvrir le réseau des deux espions qui fonctionnent à la mosquée Pontecorvo et par l'intermédiaire des agents militaires et diplomatiques.

des Nations unies qui vont vers les pays communistes.

L'arrivée des G-men a certainement favorisé avec la démission de Burgess et Mac Lean, la rétention d'une opération délicate alors devenue assez délicate. Cet état de choses devrait même l'obliger à se présenter devant les deux derniers diplomates.

Une gigantesque chasse à l'homme

L'ACTIVITÉ des services de contre-espionnage allié d'Abord limitée à toute l'Europe occidentale, la bureau fédéral d'investigation (F.B.I.) a déployé à Paris une mission ayant pour objectif principal de faire arrêter les deux derniers diplomates.

Le chef de l'unité de Donald Mac Lean et Guy Burgess continue dans leur recherche des opérations qu'il exerce sous le nom de Pontecorvo et à destination de la Russie de l'Est.

[Pontecorvo est un "camarade" espion qui a passé le rideau de fer, il y a plusieurs mois.]

À Paris, le G-men, agent du F.B.I. des réseaux de l'agence de renseignements britannique, est dans la capitale française. L'obligé est tout le personnel de tenter de retrouver les deux diplomates anglais, ce qui paraît être plus en plus difficile, malgré l'assistance de diverses forces de sécurité populaires.

Les autorités américaines ont ordonné la mobilisation des deux services de renseignements britanniques pour retrouver les deux espions — probablement à des personnes dévouées.

Ces forces populaires par la

Une plate indifférence

Entre les deux guerres mondiales, il existe de nombreux détails sur ce sujet que peu de gens connaissent.

Les dernières années ont été marquées par une forte croissance de l'industrie automobile, mais pas dans tous les pays. Les États-Unis, par exemple, ont connu une forte croissance de l'industrie automobile, mais pas dans tous les pays. C'est pourquoi les industries automobiles doivent être créées pour plusieurs raisons. La première est la nécessité de produire à la fois et non pas trop. Paris a réussi à créer une industrie automobile française grâce à l'aide technique de l'Union Soviétique. Ses succès sont donc extrêmement nombreux, mais il faut reconnaître que la France a également bénéficié de la défaite de MacLean et Burgess. Ces efforts n'ont pas été vaincu.

Le Daily Graphique, de cette manière, a été victime de l'obligation de faire des économies dans les dépenses publiques et dans le but de sauver l'industrie automobile. Les dépenses publiques ont été pris à l'échelle du gouvernement. Les autorités ont donc été obligées de faire des économies dans le budget de la défense de MacLean et Burgess. Ces efforts n'ont pas été vaincu.

ASAC [REDACTED] stated he thought the Bureau would want this information in the case file on the subject. [REDACTED]

At the same time, ASAC [REDACTED] called attention to the testimony of Secretary of State Acheson yesterday (June 7) with respect to the disappearance of MacLean. In this connection, Senator Brewster allegedly asked Secretary of State Acheson if the State Department had had prior notice of MacLean's disappearance. Acheson reportedly advised that the first he had heard of it was on a news broadcast on June 7. Acheson also, in answer to a question, stated that he did not have any prior knowledge that MacLean or Burgess had any inclination to disaffiliate. [REDACTED]

ASAC [REDACTED] stated that the Bureau might desire to keep Secretary of State Acheson's reply in mind in the event any release was planned concerning this case. [REDACTED]

There are attached copies of a letter addressed to the American Ambassador and signed "FROM AN OLD PAL OF MACLEAN" and which indicates that MacLEAN planned on entering an Iron Curtain country.

The above is being furnished the Bureau for its information.

COPY

THIS IS THE DEPOSITION WHICH MACLEAN MADE TO ME ON 24 MAY.

I am haunted and burdened by what I know of official secrets, especially by the content of high-level Anglo-American conversations. The British Government, whom I served, have betrayed the realm to Americans, who are rather jealous than indifferent towards it, to incinerate and destroy in their own sole beneficial interest. I wish to enable my beloved country to escape from the snare which faithless politicians have set. I deeply admire the example of patriotism shown by those men and women--Johnstone, Bidwell, Dagleish, Rides, and especially John Peet--who chose voluntary exile because they could not countenance, but had to expose, the criminal instructions of the Foreign Office to conduct subversive activities within the People's Democracies..

The criminal plans of which I have official knowledge touch deeper and more popular British interests: no longer our national honour, but our hope of survival as a people. I hold identical copies of the minutes of all Anglo-American conversations relating to the use of the North Atlantic Treaty for the preparation and launching of assault on the Soviet Union; to the preparations made by the State Department, and particularly by Mr. John Foster Dulles, for arranging the Korean War, and, subsequently, for a propaganda 'lead' to the Press for concealment of these facts from the public; and to the briefing of the British and American delegates at the Paris preparatory conference, with special reference to the necessity of ensuring a breakdown of the conference on a pretext as little damaging as possible to the moral prestige of the Western Powers and their credit as seekers for peace.

I have decided that I can discharge my duty to my country only through prompt disclosure of this material to Stalin, whom I shall beg to release it at once, so that it may alert the British people, furnishing them with both the reason and the power to wrest control of their destiny from the wretches who have stolen it.

I discussed these matters with Burgess, whose concurrence with my appreciation of our resultant duty is complete.

Before you, or His Majesty's Government, become aware of our absence from official duty, we shall have crossed the 'Iron Curtain' into the Free World. Our transit will be effected by June 6 at the latest.

FROM AN OLD PAL OF MACLEAN.

There are attached hereto two copies of a memorandum dealing with the disappearance of Donald Duart MacLean and Guy Francis de Voncy Burgess. I would like to add to the attached memorandum and advise you confidentially that developments growing out of the investigation of the disappearance of the two individuals make it highly probable that both were Soviet espionage agents.

Britain Probes Flight-to-Russia Mystery of 2 Missing Aides

Theory Sifted In Hunt for Britons

Lean may have disappeared behind the iron curtain and neither does my daughter," Marling said. Marling and Mrs. MacLean's mother—Mrs. Melinda Dunbar of New York—are divorced.

Burgess, who is single, was in London on leave from his Washington post. He was an undergraduate with MacLean at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and joined the foreign service at the same time—in 1946.

U. S. A-Expert Being Watched in Europe

PARIS, June 7 (NY News). Worried Western counter-intelligence officers are watching closely the suspicious movements of a "fairly high up" American atom scientist now vacationing in Europe.

"We are not certain that he is heading for Russia," a highly-informed source revealed today, "but there is a strong suspicion that he may be doing so. British, French, American and Italian authorities have been watching the man day and night."

The same informant said that the scientist, who has worked at Oak Ridge, Tenn., is a foreign-born American citizen. Although there was nothing in his background to indicate Communist leanings, other factors made his movements suspect.

The scientist now is understood to be in Italy, after brief stopovers in Britain and France. It is feared he may be traveling the same Soviet-spy-underground route taken last year by the Italian-British atom scientist Bruno Pontecorvo. Apparently the Allied counter-intelligence is anxious to discover this route as it is to prevent their men from slipping behind the iron curtain—if such is his intention.

Both Men Are Rich

But neither British security police nor the foreign office believes that the two senior executives set out for Russia. Both are rich, both have caused their superiors to doubt their emotional stability—MacLean suffered a mental breakdown a year ago—and both are believed to be somewhere in southern France.

These views were supported by the foreign office, which reported tonight that the two diplomats had eschewed their families from Paris within the last 24 hours. There was no hint as to what the cablegrams said.

A British diplomat remarked: "I am amazed. MacLean went thru Zion, he went thru Cambridge, he had a most brilliant career before him.

Student of Marx

"As for Burgess, I knew that he was a student of Marx, Lenin and Stalin—in fact, was one of our best experts on communism—but I was always sure that it was better fight the Russians than he studied all that."

"In our recent dealings with the Russians it was Burgess who gave us some of our most useful and pungent replies to the Russians."

Despite the cablegrams, however, a transcontinental search for the two men continued, with the famed Surete Nationale joining the hunt in France.

MacLean, who married Melinda Marling of New York City in 1946, was not a policy-making official, altho he had access to top-secret American and British exchanges. The father of two sons, he lives at the Reform club in Pall Mall, collects paintings and drives expensive sports cars.

In Chicago MacLean's father-in-law, Francis H. Marling, advertising manager of the Pure Oil Co., said he believed MacLean's disappearance "is a recurrence of the breakdown." Marling

SYNOPSIS OF FACTS: [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] advised that he spoke telephonically with [REDACTED] MELINDA MAC LEAN, wife of DONALD MAC LEAN, on June 7. MELINDA advised him that she had received a telegram from MAC LEAN since his disappearance. Details of telegram not revealed to [REDACTED] by MELINDA since conversation apparently monitored. [REDACTED] stated he concurs with MELINDA in the belief that MAC LEAN is suffering from a recurrence of a nervous breakdown similar to one he had in Cairo, Egypt, in 1949. [REDACTED] stated all other information possessed by him concerning MAC LEAN'S disappearance has been gained by him from news releases. [REDACTED] met MAC LEAN on several occasions during MAC LEAN'S residence in Washington, D. C., from 1944 to 1948, but has had only irregular correspondence with [REDACTED] MAC LEAN since that time. [REDACTED] described MAC LEAN as level-headed and personable who, to his knowledge, entertained no Communist philosophies. MAC LEAN, while in Washington, D. C., worked exceedingly hard at his job and appeared to be continually under pressure and great strain. [REDACTED]

Chicago File No. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] advised on June 9, 1951, that on June 7, 1951, he [REDACTED] spoke telephonically with [REDACTED], MELINDA MAC LEAN, wife of DONALD MAC LEAN, former head of the American Department of the Foreign Office of Great Britain in London, England. During this telephone conversation, [REDACTED] advised him that she had received a telegram from her husband, DONALD MAC LEAN since his disappearance. She told [REDACTED] that it was a relief to hear from MAC LEAN but made no other mention of where MAC LEAN was, where the message was sent from or contents of the message.

[REDACTED] stated that he was not certain when it was that [REDACTED] had received the telegram from MAC LEAN, but he believed that it was only a short time prior to his telephone conversation with her. [REDACTED] said the telephone connection was poor and he was cut off three times during the conversation. He stated that he believed the conversation was monitored, which might account for [REDACTED] apparent evasiveness concerning the message from MAC LEAN.

[REDACTED] advised that MELINDA was at a loss to understand MAC LEAN'S disappearance but stated to [REDACTED] that she believed he may have had a recurrence of a nervous breakdown similar to one he had in Cairo, Egypt, in 1949. [REDACTED] concurred with MELINDA in this opinion. He stated, however, that he does not recall any other nervous breakdowns suffered by MAC LEAN and he knows of no details of the breakdown in Cairo.

According to [REDACTED], MELINDA stated that the London newspaper which first carried the story that MAC LEAN had told a friend that he was going to Russia for "ideological reasons" was a "sensational-type" newspaper and that the newspaper had as yet failed to produce the "friend" that it had referred to. MELINDA believed the story to be false and told [REDACTED] that she had no reason to believe that MAC LEAN went to Russia or desired to go to Russia.

[REDACTED] stated that the only other information possessed by him concerning MAC LEAN'S disappearance has been received by him from news releases.

[REDACTED] related that MELINDA first met MAC LEAN in Paris, France, in 1938 or 1939 and married him there in 1940. MAC LEAN was at that time attached to the British Embassy in Paris and MELINDA was attending school in Paris. According to [REDACTED] MAC LEAN'S father, who is now deceased, was a prominent member of the Liberal Party in Parliament and at one time a member of the Prime Minister's Cabinet. MAC LEAN'S mother presently resides in a suburb of London, England. DONALD MAC LEAN is a graduate of Cambridge University and started his career with the British Foreign Office shortly after his graduation. After MAC LEAN'S marriage to MELINDA in 1940, he was transferred to England by the British Government and then to the United States in 1944. ()

[REDACTED] first met MAC LEAN in Washington, D. C., in 1944 and met him several times from 1944 to 1948 during trips [REDACTED] made to Washington, D. C. [REDACTED] characterized MAC LEAN as level-headed and personable and stated that he is certain he entertained no Communist philosophies or ideals during the time he knew him. MAC LEAN worked exceedingly hard at his job in Washington, D. C., and, according to [REDACTED], appeared to be continually under pressure and great strain, which [REDACTED] believed to be caused by the demands of his work for the British Embassy and not because of any intrigue or dissatisfaction with the English or American governments. [REDACTED] knew of no interest or hobby or close associates of MAC LEAN other than those connected with his employment with the British Embassy. ()

[REDACTED] advised that he corresponded only irregularly with [REDACTED] [REDACTED] MAC LEAN after 1948 and knows little concerning MAC LEAN'S life after that time, with the exception of the fact that he was transferred to Cairo, Egypt, in 1948 and suffered a nervous breakdown there in 1949. He was transferred to London, England, approximately one year ago. ()

[REDACTED] stated he has no information concerning the activities or associates of MAC LEAN or his wife during the time they spent in Egypt and London. He stated MAC LEAN'S disappearance cannot be attributed to family trouble since he and MELINDA were devoted and MELINDA is presently expecting another baby in a few weeks. ()

[REDACTED] advised that newspaper accounts of MAC LEAN'S alleged message to MELINDA indicated that the message, which was sent from

Chicago File No. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]
Paris, France, was not in MAC LEAN'S handwriting and that words were misspelled, that MAC LEAN would not have misspelled had he written the message. In the light of this news item, [REDACTED] stated that it appeared possible that MAC LEAN might have been lured to Paris and then kidnaped. [REDACTED] stated he was not certain whether or not the message referred to in the news item was the same message to which his daughter had referred in his telephone conversation with her, although he believes them to be the same.

[REDACTED] advised that he had no further information at this time but would gladly cooperate with the FBI in every way.

In reference to the telephone conversation with [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] advised that [REDACTED] was speaking from London, England.

We have had numerous calls from English correspondents in the United States and from the wire services on the visit of Sir Percy Sillitoe to the United States. The press is speculating that he is going to confer with the Director and, in fact, has stated to us that he was coming to Washington to confer with the Director on the two missing foreign service officers of the British Government.

In each instance we have declined to comment even to the extent of declining comment as to whether we knew that Sir Percy was en route to Washington.

Undoubtedly if Sir Percy does get into Washington he will be contacted by the press. The Director might want to let him know of the inquiries we have been getting.

SYNOPSIS OF FACTS:

[REDACTED] first met GUY BURGESS in April, 1951 when [REDACTED] was picked up by BURGESS while hitchhiking enroute to Jacksonville, Fla. [REDACTED] accompanied BURGESS from Fredericksburg, Virginia to Charleston, South Carolina. BURGESS registered at hotel in Charleston, identity unknown to [REDACTED] where BURGESS met two women and three men who were also employees of British Government in U. S. BURGESS commented to [REDACTED] that unless Great Britain and United States did not watch people in high offices, they would both be run by Communists. BURGESS indicated that he would never fight for freedom again and they would have to kill him before he would be returned to service. BURGESS planned to return to Britain for vacation in fall of 1951 and indicated he would like to go to USSR as a Representative of the British Foreign Service. BURGESS felt he could learn and do many things of interest in the USSR. [REDACTED] considers BURGESS sympathetic to USSR. BURGESS planned to meet friends who worked in Oak Ridge, Tenn. prior to returning to District of Columbia and to deliver to them photographs he had taken of H-Bomb installations near Charleston. BURGESS is homosexual. [REDACTED]

DETAILS:

The following information relative to GUY BURGESS was furnished by [REDACTED]

- RUC -

X3

During the first or second week of April, 1951, while so employed, [REDACTED] was hitchhiking rides in Fredericksburg, Va. enroute to an auction in Jacksonville, Fla. At approximately 10:00 A.M. on the date that he was hitchhiking in Fredericksburg, Va. he was picked up by an unknown individual driving a 1941 Lincoln Continental Convertible. The driver, after questioning [REDACTED] as to his destination, told him he was enroute to Charleston, South Carolina and would be glad to give [REDACTED] a lift as far as Charleston.

After the vehicle was underway, the driver identified himself to [REDACTED] as GUY-BURGESS, a British Diplomat, stationed in the United States. BURGESS personally drove his car as far as Richmond, Virginia where brake trouble developed and it was necessary to secure minor brake repairs. These repairs were handled at the Ford Garage on Broad St. near the Railroad Station in Richmond, Virginia and required approximately one-half hour. During this half hour interval, BURGESS invited [REDACTED] to accompany him to lunch and upon the completion of the meal BURGESS paid the bill.

During the luncheon, BURGESS consumed a considerable quantity of beer and after the repairs had been completed, requested that [REDACTED] do the driving. [REDACTED] drove BURGESS' car on Route 301 towards Petersburg, Va., originally observing the 55 mile per hour Virginia speed limit. BURGESS became dissatisfied with [REDACTED] rigid observance of the Virginia speed limit and told him that he authorized him to drive in excess of the speed limit inasmuch as it was necessary for BURGESS to keep an appointment in Charleston, S. C. [REDACTED]

At approximately five miles south of Petersburg, Va., [REDACTED] was arrested for driving BURGESS' car between 75 and 80 miles per hour. BURGESS attempted to save [REDACTED] from being arrested by claiming that [REDACTED] was driving the vehicle for BURGESS and that BURGESS' diplomatic immunity would extend to [REDACTED]. The Virginia State Police, however, did not consider that BURGESS' diplomatic immunity extended to [REDACTED] inasmuch as [REDACTED] was an American citizen who was not employed by the British Government.

As an aftermath of the incident, the Virginia State Police set [REDACTED] bond at $55.00 and BURGESS, not having sufficient cash on his person to pay this amount, returned to Petersburg, Va. where he cashed a check at a hotel and returned and actually posted the bond required, indicating at the time that this bond would be forfeited and no appearance in a Virginia court was contemplated. The entire episode required about 1½ hours, during which time [REDACTED] was held at a Virginia State Police station.

NH [REDACTED]

BURGESS did not appear at all distressed over [REDACTED] arrest and [REDACTED] continued to drive BURGESS' car proceeding on Route 301 and then transferring to Route 17 enroute to Charleston, S. C.

At approximately 11:00 or 11:30 P.M. [REDACTED] and BURGESS arrived at a tourist court on Route 17 some 60 miles north of Charleston. [REDACTED] and BURGESS immediately retired and arose at approximately 7:30 or 8:00 A.M. on the following morning and proceeded to Charleston, arriving there at 10:30 A.M. On this day BURGESS personally did the driving.

BURGESS registered at a hotel, the name of which [REDACTED] cannot recall, but [REDACTED] indicated that this hotel is a large hotel on the main street in Charleston and is directly across from a large park which occupies practically an entire City block. While registering at this hotel, BURGESS met two women and three men who obviously were friends of his. These men were approximately the same build as BURGESS and the women were in their 30's. BURGESS told [REDACTED] that this group of individuals were all employees of the British Government in the United States. [REDACTED] pointed out that he could not give a more accurate description of these individuals because he had no opportunity to observe them for any length of time and, at the time, had absolutely no interest in them.

Inasmuch as [REDACTED] has spent more time with BURGESS than he had originally anticipated, it now became too late for him to attend the car auction in Jacksonville. BURGESS felt that he was largely responsible for [REDACTED] failure to attend the auction and, therefore, paid TUNK $35.00 for [REDACTED] work as BURGESS' chauffeur. BURGESS purchased a railroad ticket for [REDACTED] transportation from Charleston to Richmond, Virginia where [REDACTED] could attend another auction. This purchase was made by BURGESS at a ticket agency located in the basement of the hotel in Charleston at which he registered. It was [REDACTED] recollection that BURGESS paid $12.00 for this ticket.

[REDACTED] specifically recalls that BURGESS introduced himself as a British Diplomat. He recalls that in a casual conversation with BURGESS, he and BURGESS discussed the merits of American and British motor vehicles as well as American roads versus British roads. After a brief discussion of these topics the conversation turned to Communism. [REDACTED] is uncertain as to the exact manner in which the conversation began, but, at any rate, BURGESS committed that if the United States and Great Britain did not watch themselves and watch the people in high offices, "we would all be run by Communists".

The conversation then turned to the Korean situation and BURGESS asked [REDACTED] what he thought about the Korean war. [REDACTED] told BURGESS that he felt the A-Bomb should be used by the Americans against the North Koreans. BURGESS replied by saying that "it should not be used because other countries have the A-Bomb too, and plans for just as effective bombs as those possessed by the Americans".

The discussion continued and [REDACTED] told BURGESS that the Korean war represented a fight for freedom and that freedom was always worth fighting for. BURGESS replied by saying, "I'll never fight for freedom again; they will have to kill me before I go back into service". BURGESS explained that he had fought for freedom once in the last war and that after it had been achieved, the United Nations had allowed another war to start in Korea. After this the United States and the United Nations had gone into this war when they had no reason to do so.

BURGESS told [redacted] that he planned to go back to Great Britain on vacation in the fall of 1951. He did not mention plans for vacation outside of Britain, in Europe, the Soviet Union or any other part of the world. However, in reference to the Soviet Union, BURGESS did comment by saying that he would like to go to the USSR as a Representative of the British Foreign Service. BURGESS said he could learn and do many interesting things in the USSR. BURGESS did not specifically say what he meant by interesting things, but from the conversation [redacted] felt that BURGESS had a general interest in Russia and its Government.

In [redacted] opinion, BURGESS felt sympathetic towards the Soviet Union. He based this on BURGESS' reference to Korea, his interest in Russian affairs, as well as his statement that he could learn and do many interesting things in the USSR. [redacted] could not recall any other specific statements relative to Russia.

After riding with BURGESS for sometime, [redacted] became alarmed and thought possibly BURGESS might not be a diplomat, but rather that he might be a spy. [redacted] based this on the fact that BURGESS asked him questions relative to whom [redacted] thought would win the war in Korea, what branch of the service [redacted] had been in during the last war and questions as to the number of men now in the United States Naval Service and in the United States Air Force. [redacted] indicated that on these occasions he replied that he had no way of knowing the number of men so maintained in the Armed Services.

BURGESS appeared interested also in the American Jet Fighter and inasmuch as [redacted] had told him that he had been in the Air Corp, BURGESS asked him several questions relative to the performance of this Fighter. [redacted] told him that the American Jets, as a group, were probably the best in the world and gave good performance with a minimum of service performance.

[redacted] felt so strongly that BURGESS probably was a spy that he asked an officer of the Virginia State Police, soon after his arrest, if BURGESS actually was a British Diplomat or might be an espionage agent. This officer told [redacted] that the papers that BURGESS carried on his person indicated that BURGESS was a bonafied British Diplomat.

BURGESS also told [redacted] that he had friends who worked in Oak Ridge, Tenn. whom he planned to visit before returning to Washington, D. C. BURGESS did not tell [redacted] the type of work that these friends of his pursued in Oak Ridge or make any comments relative to their status.

[redacted] observed that BURGESS carried two cameras and a tripod in his car.

One was a camera similar to those used by newspaper photographers and the other was a movie camera. BURGESS told [REDACTED] that he, BURGESS, was going to take pictures of the area near Charleston, S. C. where the United States had purchased a tract of land for the purpose of building the H-Bomb. BURGESS said that after taking these pictures he planned to turn them over to his friends who were in Oak Ridge. BURGESS told [REDACTED] that he liked aerial photography and while in the United States had taken many photographs of aircraft flying over the United States.

BURGESS carried a British made pistol in the glove compartment of his car. He showed this pistol to [REDACTED] and when BURGESS' car was left for repairs in Richmond, BURGESS took this pistol from the glove compartment and kept it on his person.

[REDACTED] advised that he has no information as to BURGESS' present whereabouts or BURGESS' purpose in leaving Great Britain in May, 1951.

[redacted] said that he had never seen GUY BURGESS prior to the time that BURGESS picked him up hitchhiking or subsequent to that time. [redacted] indicated that he was not certain of the date that he had met BURGESS in April, 1951 but that the correct date would be the date which would appear in the arrest records of the Virginia State Police.

Signed statements were obtained from [redacted] covering the information set forth in this report.

I, [REDACTED], make the following statement voluntarily to [REDACTED] [REDACTED] who has identified himself to me as a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. I make this statement freely and I have received no threats or promises. I have been advised that this statement may be used in a court of law.

At approximately 10:00 a.m. during the first or second week in April of 1951, I was thumbing a ride at Fredericksburg, Virginia en route to Jacksonville, Florida where I anticipated attending an automobile action on the following day. [REDACTED] [REDACTED]

At this time I was picked up by an unknown individual driving a 1941 Lincoln Continental convertible. The driver after asking me how far I was going, told me he was en route to Charleston, South Carolina and would be glad to give me a lift as far as Charleston.

After we were under way, the driver of the car identified himself as GUY BURGESS, a British diplomat stationed in the United States. Burgess personally drove his car as far as Richmond, Virginia and in as much as brake trouble developed, Burgess stopped at the Ford garage on Broad Street near the Railroad Station in Richmond for approximately $\frac{1}{2}$ hour for repairs.

During this half hour interval, Burgess and I had lunch together and Burgess paid the bill.

As soon as the car was repaired, Burgess asked me to do the driving in as much as he had drunk a considerable amount of beer during the interval that the car was being repaired and he felt that it would be better if I did the driving. I drove on Route 301 towards Petersburg, Virginia. I was observing the 55 mile per hour Virginia speed limit, but Burgess told me that it was necessary for him to keep an appointment in Charleston, South Carolina and in order that he would not be late for this appointment, he told me to drive faster. At approximately 5 miles south of Petersburg, I was arrested driving Burgess' car while travelling between 75 and 80 miles per hour. Burgess attempted to save me from being arrested by claiming I was driving for him and he had diplomatic immunity. The Virginia State Police considered that while Burgess had diplomatic immunity, it did not extend to me in as much as I was an American citizen not employed by the British Government. The Virginia State Police set my bond at 55 dollars and Burgess, not having this amount in cash and not being able to pay by check, returned to ~~Petersburg~~ ^{D.K.} where he cashed a check at a hotel and returned with the cash and actually posted the bond. I remained at the Virginia State Police station for approximately 1½ hours before the incident was cleared up.

After the arrest I still continued to drive the car and we proceeded on Route 301 and then transferred to Route 17 en route to Charleston, South Carolina.

At approximately 11 or 11:30 p.m., we arrived at a tourist court on Route 17 some 60 miles north of Charleston, South Carolina. We immediately retired. We arose at approximately 7:30 or 8 a.m. on the following morning and proceeded to Charleston, South Carolina and arrived there at approximately 10:30 a.m. On this date, Burgess personally did the driving.

Burgess registered at a hotel, the name of which I cannot recall, but this hotel is a large hotel on Main Street in Charleston and is directly across from a large park which occupied practically an entire city block. Burgess appeared well acquainted with both Charleston and the hotel set-up. While he was registering at the hotel he met two women and three men who were obviously friends of his. The men were approximately the same build as Burgess and the women were in their 30's. Burgess told me that this group of individuals were all employees of the British Government in the United States. I cannot give a more adequate description of the individuals because I had no opportunity to observe them for any length of time and no interest in them.

In as much as I had spent so much time with Burgess and due to the unforeseen delays with car trouble and the Virginia State Police, it now became too late for me to attend the car auction in Jacksonville. Burgess paid me $35.00 for driving the car for him and purchased a ticket for me to return to Richmond, Virginia, where I would be able to attend a car auction. This ticket was purchased at a ticket agency in the basement of the hotel at which Burgess registered. As nearly as I can recall, the price of the ticket from Charleston, South Carolina to Richmond, Virginia was $12.00.

During my conversation with Burgess I recall specifically that he introduced himself as a British diplomat. We had a casual conversation with reference to the various differences in the roads of the United States and Great Britain and to the merits of the American and British motor vehicles. The conversation then turned to Communism. I am uncertain as to the exact manner in which the conversation began, but, at any rate, Burgess commented that if the United States and Great Britain did not watch themselves and watch the people in high offices that "We would all be run by Communists". The conversation then turned to the Korean situation and Burgess asked me what I thought about the Korean war. I told him that the A-bomb should be used. Burgess replied by saying that it should not be used because other countries have the A-bomb too and plans for just as effective bombs as ours.

I told Burgess that the Korean war was a fight for freedom and that freedom was always worth fighting for. He replied by saying, "I'll never fight for freedom again; they'll have to kill me before I go back in service." Burgess said that he had fought for freedom once in the last war and that after it had been achieved, the United Nations had allowed another war to start in Korea. Then the United States and the United Nations had gone into this war when they had no reason to do so.

Burgess told me that he planned to go back to Great Britain on a vacation in the fall of 1951. He did not mention any plans for vacation in any part of Europe, the Soviet Union, or other parts of the world; however, in reference to the Soviet Union, Burgess did comment by saying that he would like to go to the U.S.S.R. as a representative of the British Foreign Service. Burgess said he could learn and do so many interesting things in the U.S.S.R. He did not specifically say what he meant by interesting things, but from the conversation I felt that he had a general interest in Russia and its government. In my opinion, Burgess felt sympathetic towards the Soviet Union. I base this on his references to Korea and his interest in Russian affairs as well as his statement that he could learn and do many interesting things in the U.S.S.R. I cannot recall any other specific statements relative to Russia.

After riding with Burgess for some time I became alarmed and thought possibly that Burgess might not be a diplomat, but might be a spy. I based this on the fact that Burgess asked me many questions relative to who I thought would win the war in Korea, what branch of service I had been in during the last war, and questions as to the number of men now in the United States Naval service and in the United States Air Force. To these questions I replied that I had no way of knowing the number of men so maintained in these branches of service. Burgess was also interested in the American jet fighter and in as much as I had been in the Air Force, he asked me several questions relative to the performance of this fighter. I told him that the American jets, as a group, were probably the best in the world and gave good performance with a minimum of service problems.

I felt so strongly that Burgess was probably a spy that I asked an officer of the Virginia State Police soon after my arrest if Burgess actually was a British diplomat or might be a spy. This officer told me that his papers indicated that he actually was a bona fide diplomat.

Burgess told me that he had friends who worked in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, whom he planned to visit before returning to Washington, D.C. Burgess did not tell me of the type of work that these friends of his pursued at Oak Ridge or what their status might be.

I observed that Burgess carried two cameras in his car; one was a camera similar to those used by newspaper photographers and the other was a movie camera. He also had a tripod. Burgess told me he was going to take pictures of the areas near Charleston, South Carolina where the United States Government had purchased a tract of land for the purpose of building the H-bomb. Burgess said that after taking these pictures, he planned to turn them over to his friends who were at Oak Ridge.

Burgess told me he liked aerial photography and while in the United States he had taken many photographs from aircraft flying over the United States.

Burgess carried a British made pistol in the glove compartment of his car. He showed me this pistol and when the car was left for repair in Richmond, Virginia, Burgess took this pistol from the glove compartment and kept it on his person.

I have no information as to Burgess' present whereabouts or his purpose in leaving Great Britain in May of 1951 or his possible destination.

I am not absolutely certain of the date that I met GUY BURGESS in April

45

1951; however, the correct date is the date which will appear in the records of the Virginia State Police showing the date on which I was arrested.

I had never seen GUY BURGESS prior to the date that he picked me up thumbing a ride and I have never seen him subsequent to that time.

I have read this & the preceding 6 pages of this statement, I have initialed each page & lack change. The information contained in this statement is true & correct.

Dear General [REDACTED]:

There are attached hereto two copies of a memorandum dealing with the disappearance of Donald Duart MacLean and Guy Francis de Lancy Burgess. I would like to add to the attached memorandum and advise you confidentially that developments growing out of the investigation of the disappearance of the two individuals make it highly probable that both were Soviet espionage agents.

June 19, 1951

DONALD DUART MacLEAN

GUY FRANCIS de MONCY BURGESS

in Cairo, Egypt,

1950 until May,

1951, and a couple of days

Donald Duart MacLean and Guy Francis de Moncy Burgess disappeared after allegedly planning to make only a week end trip to St. Malo, France. They left by ship from England on May 25, 1951, and the only trace of their whereabouts since then, according to [redacted] is that they traveled by taxicab from St. Malo to Rennes, France, on May 26, 1951. Telegrams were received by MacLean's mother and by his wife, allegedly from MacLean, these two telegrams being delivered for transmittal at a post office in Paris, France, on June 6, 1951. A telegram was received by Burgess' mother which had been delivered to a post office in Rome, Italy, on June 7, 1951. Investigation has reportedly disclosed that the handwriting on these telegrams was not that of MacLean or Burgess.

Information developed by investigation both in the United States and abroad reflects these men were homosexuals. Guy Burgess, while in the United States, was well known as a homosexual to his associates.

Donald Duart MacLean was born May 25, 1913, in England. He is the son of the late Liberal Party leader, Sir Donald MacLean. MacLean is married to Melinda Marling MacLean. She was born July 25, 1916, in the United States and she married Donald Duart MacLean on June 16, 1949, in Paris. She and her mother, Mrs. Melinda Dunbar, are presently in England. Donald Duart MacLean entered the British Foreign Service on October 11, 1935, serving in the British Foreign Office in London until September 24, 1938. MacLean was then attached to the British Embassy in Paris until June 16, 1940. He thereafter remained in the Foreign Office in London until May 1, 1944, at which time he was transferred to serve in the British Embassy in Washington, D. C. He remained in Washington until September 1, 1948. Thereafter he served from November 6, 1948, until May, 1950, in the British Embassy in Cairo, Egypt. After allegedly recovering from a breakdown in Cairo he served from October, 1950, until his disappearance on May 25, 1951, with the Foreign Office in London, as the head of the American Department.

[REDACTED]

With respect to MacLean's breakdown in Cairo, Egypt, it has been reported that from about January, 1950, until May, 1950, MacLean was drinking heavily in company with a journalist, [REDACTED] of the London "Observer." In May, 1950, the two men broke into the apartment of two American girls in Cairo and this resulted in MacLean being recalled to London. In London he was under the care of a woman psychiatrist of German origin. [REDACTED]

Guy Francis de Moncy Burgess was born April 16, 1911, in England. He attended Cambridge University, reportedly being a Communist while there. From 1934 to 1935 he lectured in history at Trinity College, Cambridge, England. From 1935 to 1938 he was with the British Broadcasting Company engaged in anti-Nazi propaganda work. From 1939 to 1941 he was employed by the British Intelligence organization. [REDACTED] From 1941 to 1944 he was again with the British Broadcasting Company. From 1944 to 1946 he had a temporary appointment in the News Department of the Foreign Office in London and was thereafter employed in the private office of the Minister of State, Hector MacNeil, until 1948. He then worked from 1948 to 1950 in the Far Eastern Department of the Foreign Office, and in August, 1950, was transferred to the British Embassy in Washington, D. C. in the Far Eastern Affairs Department. He left the United States on transfer back to England on May 1, 1951. After his return he was called before a board and informed that all chances for further promotion in the British Foreign Service were over. This is reportedly tantamount to dismissal procedure. Burgess' recall from the United States grew out of a letter dated March 14, 1951, from Governor Battle of Virginia to Mr. John F. Simmons, the Chief of Protocol of the State Department. In this letter Governor Battle called attention to the fact that during March, 1951, Guy Burgess and an individual by the name of [REDACTED] had been arrested and brought before Judge Binford on a charge of reckless driving. Burgess claimed diplomatic immunity for himself and the driver, reportedly even going so far as to threaten the arresting officer in the event the case was prosecuted. The individual with whom Burgess was traveling, [REDACTED], has been interviewed. He advised that Burgess picked him up while he was hitchhiking to Jacksonville, Florida, and during the time they were driving ff

[REDACTED]

107

through the State of Virginia they were stopped three times for driving at excessive speeds.

Xo He stated that Burgess took him as far as Charleston, South Carolina, the two men spending the night in a tourist court some 60 miles north of Charleston.

From January, 1947, to August, 1948, MacLean officially represented the British Embassy on matters dealing with political aspects of atomic energy. He reportedly had no access to classified scientific information, but he did have full knowledge of the discussions which took place during that period concerning cooperation between the United States, Canada, and England. He had access to communications on such matters which passed between Washington, D. C. and London, England. During the same period he had knowledge of the transactions of the Combined Development Agency and of arrangements for securing raw materials and estimates of future production which were made at that time.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

With respect to Burgess' access to information of political nature, it has been reported to be of a much lower grade than the information to which MacLean had access. During the period that he was the secretary to the Minister of State, Hector MacNeil, he would, of course, have had access to important information. During the period he was in Washington, D. C. he reportedly was not given important duties in the Far Eastern Affairs Department.

My dear Mr. Dean:

There are attached hereto two copies of a memorandum dealing with the disappearance of Donald Duart MacLean and Guy Francis de Poncy Burgess. I would like to add to the attached memorandum and advise you confidentially that developments growing out of the investigation of the disappearance of the two individuals make it highly probable that both were Soviet espionage agents.

I would therefore like to request you to prepare for us a paper showing in some detail the extent of the damage done through MacLean representing the British Embassy during 1947 and 1948 on matters dealing with the political aspects of atomic energy and through his work on the Combined Development Agency. The above would be assuming that MacLean was either a Soviet agent or has defected to the Soviet Union.

[REDACTED] was interviewed on June 14, 1951. He said he met Burgess on the Queen Mary on May 1, 1951, en route to Europe. [REDACTED] debarked at Cherbourg; Burgess was reportedly to proceed to Southampton. After leaving the ship [REDACTED] proceeded to Switzerland, where he registered at the University of Geneva Medical School and remained in Switzerland about one week. He then stated he stayed in Paris for about four days, leaving there for London, where he arrived on about May 21, 1951. He stated that he telephoned Burgess two days later and met him for cocktails and dinner. [REDACTED] said he met Burgess on three occasions in London, during which time he met [REDACTED], [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] also met the British actress, [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. He also met the proprietor of the Gargoyle Restaurant in London whose first name is [REDACTED]. He said he also met Burgess' roommate, whose first name is John or Jack. It appeared that this is [REDACTED], who has been mentioned previously by you. Miller stated he also casually met friends of Burgess at the Reform Club. He cannot remember the names of these individuals. (B)

He is positive that he never met Maclean, nor did Burgess ever mention this name. He said that throughout his relationship with Burgess he was aware of Burgess' general unhappiness and instability, bordering on mental illness due to his recall to London and Burgess' unsettled state. He said Burgess did not indicate any plans for the future. [REDACTED] stated he knew nothing about any money Burgess may have possessed. He stated Burgess never mentioned Communism nor evidenced pro-Communist or pro-Russian attitudes. He said that on occasion Burgess criticized the Russians for "Youling things internationally." [REDACTED] stated it was his impression that politically Burgess was in line with the present British labor Government policies. He advised that at various times Burgess mentioned a desire to go to the Continent, particularly Paris. He recalled Burgess speaking of a friend who had settled in a beautiful place called Locerne or Lugano section of Switzerland. Burgess said some day he would like to settle down in this section. [REDACTED] expressed shock at reading of Burgess' flight to an Iron Curtain country and stated of the two places of asylum he believes Burgess would select Switzerland. [REDACTED] denied planning any trips with Burgess, specifically any trip to Paris. Miller was not aware, nor did Burgess mention any knowledge of an investigation being conducted. - - . (B)

It is contemplated that Miller will be reinterviewed and we would appreciate receiving from you any information which will assist in the reinterview. We would like to know if any of the statements made by [REDACTED] are not in accord with the facts as known to you.

SOPHIA CHURCH, TURKEY, AND MAY HAVE ALSO EXPRESSED ADMIRATION OF SYRIA. IN EARLY OCTOBER, NINETEEN FIFTY, BURGESS VISITED NYC, AND POSSIBLY STAYED SUTTON HOTEL. [REDACTED] AND HE HAD DINNER WITH FRIEND OF BURGESS, FIRST NAME [REDACTED], [REDACTED] [REDACTED], WHO WAS STAYING HOTEL FIERRE. BURGESS BOASTED OF FRIENDSHIP WITH ONE [REDACTED], AN ALLEGEDLY HOMOSEXUAL ARTIST WHO IS NOW IN ITALY. ALSO, [REDACTED], ENGLISH POET, AND [REDACTED], ENGLISH NOVELIST, BOTH PROBABLY HOMOSEXUALS ACCORDING TO [REDACTED]. STATES HE ERCKE FRIENDSHIP WITH BURGESS BECAUSE OF HIS HOMOSEXUALITY, INTEPERATE DRINKING, AND THE FACT HE THINKS BURGESS BORDERS ON PSYCHOPATHIC CONDITION. NY WILL ATTEMPT TO ASCERTAIN IF BURGESS STAYED AT SUTTON HOTEL, AND WILL ATTEMPT TO IDENTITY " [REDACTED] [REDACTED]", THRCUGH HOTEL FIERRE, AND DETERMINE WHEREABOUTS OF [REDACTED]

Several weeks after this first meeting [REDACTED] made a business trip to Washington, D.C. and got in touch with Burgess. [REDACTED] said that at that time Burgess was residing with another British Embassy official and wife who resided in a house on Nebraska Avenue. It would appear that [REDACTED] was referring to the house rented by Mr. Kim Philby at 4700 Nebraska Avenue, N.W. Washington, D.C. [REDACTED] said that residing at the same house was a young lady who was an employee of the British Embassy. Burgess advised [REDACTED] that he was considering marriage to this girl.

Burgess also introduced [REDACTED] to [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] [REDACTED] He said that Burgess shortly appeared to be quite good friends and the three had dinner together. On the following day, which was a Sunday, Burgess took [REDACTED] for a drive to Great Falls, Maryland. On this trip Burgess made preliminary homosexual advances, to which [REDACTED] stated he gave no response. Burgess advised [REDACTED] that he had had a homosexual relationship with one Peter in England before World War II. He said that Peter went into the armed forces and the relationship was not resumed after the end of the war. On the trip to Great Falls Burgess brought 30 or 40 small drawings and water colors which he had done. Most of these were of scenes in the Middle East. Burgess expressed a love of life in that part of the world, especially the Mohammedan countries where he said men are dominant and women are in the background. He further expressed the opinion that the Western World is very muddled up and said he would like to get away from it. Burgess reportedly stated that the things he had hoped for in the way of peace and generally improved world conditions have not come to pass. According to [REDACTED], Burgess did not express any sympathy for Communism, nor did he mention any studies of Marxism or Communism which he might have made. Burgess also expressed an appreciation of the beauty of the St. Sophia Church in Turkey and [REDACTED] believes that he may have expressed an admiration for Syria.

In early October, 1950, Burgess visited New York City and Bushmore had dinner with him and with a friend of Burgess' whose first name is [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] Burgess also boasted of friendship with [REDACTED], who he said was a homosexual artist now in Italy. He also mentioned [REDACTED], an English poet, and [REDACTED], an English novelist. [REDACTED] believed that both of these latter persons were probably homosexuals. [REDACTED] claims that he broke up his friendship with Burgess because of Burgess' homosexual tendencies, intemperate drinking, and the fact that he thinks Burgess borders on being psychopathic.
